Lewis Says He Has No Suggestions For Preventing New Coal Strike

BOYS BLAME TROUBLES ON BROKEN HOME

Two Are Sentenced to Industrial School; Among 9 Now Facing Charges.

Two brothers, who testified in juvenile court today that home conditions were the cause of their delinquency, were sentenced by Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast to indeterminate periods at Boys Industrial School at Lancaster.

The boys, 14 and 16, were caught Tuesday night by police while fleeing from a break-in at Williams grocery at 546 Ballentine avenue. They were riding stolen bicycles and carrying loaded, stolen revolvers.

They were among nine boys who are now facing charges of theft before Judge Gast.

Another boy, 14, who admitted taking part in automobile pilferings yesterday in preliminary hearing, was put on probation by Judge Gast.

Home Is Broken

In court today with the accused brothers were their mother, a youthful, well-dressed woman, their grandmother and an aunt. The family group placed the blame for the boys' misbehavior on incompatibility between the mother and the boys' step-father, which reacted unfavorably on the boys. The mother and step-father are now divorced.

The mother works at a factory and the younger lad told of being locked out from midnight to 4 a. m. The boys, it developed were unable to gain entrance to the house until the mother came home and let them in.

"I started stealing then," one boy said.

When his brother was asked why he broke into the stores, he answered, "For money, excitement, or something."

Both boys have long records of truancy, related by A. T. Allen, city visiting teacher.

The boys told of stealing, among other things, 15 pounds of sugar from a grocery and of making fudge at home while their mother was at work.

The grandmother, who took care of one of the boys until recently, told of the effect the lack of control of the mother's unorganized home had upon the boys.

"When the boy's grandfather and I kept him from staying out until 11 o'clock he went back to his mother's house, where he had more freedom," she testified.

Belonged To No Groups

On questioning of Robert A. Kelly, Marion atttorney, who represented the boys, the younger lad said he had never belonged to any boys' clubs, the Y.M.C.A., or played on any ball teams. He had belonged to the Boy Scouts for a short time, but dropped out, he said. The boys said their main interest was in going to shows and football games.

Mr. Kelly pointed out that there was no city recreation program for youngsters and the boy, sullen and resentful, agreed.

"There's nothing to do except sit around home and play cards or go out and get into trouble," he said.

Mr. Allen summed up statements of several present at the hearing in declaring, "The trouble has been that these boys have been alone too much of the time and have had a lot of opportunity to do things they shouldn't do."

Judge Gast admitted the value of community attention to juvenile problems, but added, "if these parents would have a community center in their own home, we wouldn't need a community center."

In passing sentence on the boys, he refused the grandmother's plea to keep them, stating that the lads had got to the point where something must be done to control them, adding that he believed they would come out of Lancaster the better for it.

South Pleads Innocent Of Murdering Girl, 11

By The Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 7 — Robert L. Coombes, 17, pleaded not guilty today to an indictment charging murder in the slaying of seven-year-old Jacqueline Maxwell and immediately was committed to the Bridgewater State hospital for 35 days' mental observation.

As he appeared in court, funeral services were conducted for the child.

An extraordinary guard escorted the youth through a muttering throng of perhaps 150 persons, to and from the courthouse. Although women's imprecations were audible, no attempt was made to reach the prisoner.

Members of the little victim's family were absent, attending her funeral. The cortege passed the state house in Boston to call attention to alleged weakness in laws applicable to sex offenders.

"NO COMMENT" FROM LEWIS. "I have no comment of any character," says John L. Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers, as he talks to Washington reporters who ask him for a statement regarding the supreme court decision upholding the contempt conviction against the miné union chief under which he must pay a $10,000 fine. "Standing Room Only" Sign Out At Lewis Hearing

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7— The "standing room only" sign was out when John L. Lewis arrived to testify before the senate labor committee today.

And, there wasn't much of that with all seats taken in the spacious senate caucus room and other spectators lining the sides and aisles. There was much craning of necks as every one tried to get a look at the mine leader.

Glumly he sat behind William L. McGrath, president of the Wilson Heat Co., of Cincinnati.

Then, because he had mistakenly thought he was to testify first, Lewis had to listen for 40 minutes as the soft-spoken Ohio industrialist criticized the tactics of large national unions.

Lewis, scowling, finally took the witness chair and began reading his prepared statement after telling the committee "I could mumble by way through it."

MOTHER, TWO SONS GO ON TRIAL TODAY

Face Judge Smith on Assault Charge.

A mother and her two sons, Mrs. Lena Jackson, 47, and Richard J. Casperson, 21, both of 415 Mary street and James E. Casperson, 25, of 144 East Farming street, were on trial before Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith today on charges of assault an battery.

The trial follows an altercation at the Hub Bar and Grill on South Main street several months ago in which Walter Garner, bartender, and Robert Garster, co-proprietor, charged they were attacked when they refused to sell drinks to the Caspersons. The January term grand jury reduced charges against the mother and her two sons from assault with intent to kill an indicted them on charges of assault and battery.

Attorney for the defendants is Carter M. Patton and assisting Marion County Prosecutor James E. Reed is Frank Wiedeman.

Testifying for the state this morning were Garster, Garner, Ralph Nicolosi, who with Garster is proprietor of the cafe, Police Captain Louis E. Kirts and Mrs. Ella Carr, a cafe worker. The state rested its case shortly before noon. Also on the stand this morning were Richard and James Casperson.

The trial is expected to end this afternoon.

2 HIGHWAY WORKERS LOSE JOBS FOR POLITICAL ACTS

Lima Man Included in Those Fired by Department.

COLUMBUS, O., March 7 — Two state highway department workers lost their jobs today partly because of alleged political activity in 1944 and 1945.

The state civil service commission was notified by Highway Director Murray D. Shaffer of the removal of Lawrence J. Schroeder, a bookkeeper in the Division No. 1 garage at Lima, on a charge of political activity and malfeasance.

Fred S. McCulloch was discharged as laborer-in-charge for Logan county on charges of political activity, inefficiency, malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance.

The order removing Schroeder said that on Aug. 1, 1945, he became candidate for mayor of Glandorf in Putnam county and took part in the 1946 election campaign.

McCulloch, Shaffer reported, was a member of the Democratic executive committee of Logan county in 1944 and 1945, took part in the 1946 campaign and is unable to supervise men, refused to do manual labor, was frequently absent from his job and misused state equipment.

SENATOR PREDICTS FLAT RENT INCREASE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7 — Senator Hawkes (R-NJ) predicted today that congress would approve a "flat increase" in rent ceilings—probably 15 per cent—despite reports that the senate banking committee has turned thumbs down an any across-the-board boost.

"When this finally reaches us for action I think there will be a flat increase of 15 per cent over rent ceilings of Sept. 1, 1946," Hawkes told a reporter.

The New Jersey lawmaker thus echoed a forecast voiced earlier this week by Senator Buck (R-Del), chairman of the banking subcommittee which itself voted for a 10 per cent hike. Buck said he believed the general sentiment outside the committe was in favor of a larger increase.

In any event, all parties to the argument agreed that no final decision was likely this month because legislation cannot start through congress—unless leaders change their plans—before sometime in April.

Meanwhile Chairman Tobey (R-NH) tried to keep a mantle of secrecy over what the senate banking committee did yesterday when it sent the 10 per cent bill back to Buck's subcommittee.

That measure, originally approved by a 3 to 2 party-line vote, would remove administration of rent control from the OPA and place it in the federal courts. It also would have removed controls over the new housing.

The 10 per cent increase would have been over ceilings in effect last Dec. 31.

Telephone, Telegraph Strike Looms April 7

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7— A nationwide strike April 7 in both the telephone and telegraph industries was threatened today.

AFL unions representing 50,000 Western Union workers told the company they will accept what they consider "an open invitation to strike your industry." They prepared 30-day strike notices to be filed with the labor department, possibly today.

The National Federation of Telephone Workers already had fixed April 7 as walkout day for 200,000 traffic and equipment workers unless some agreement is reached on wage increase and other demands.

The Western Union strike threat arose after the company submitted to the unions its idea of what should be discussed at contract negotiations beginning in New York next Monday.

BUCYRIAN NOMINATED

WASHINGTON, March 7 — President Truman today nominated Henry E. Cook of Bucyrus, Ohio, to the board of the federal deposit insurance corporation for the unexpired term of six years dating from Sept. 6, 1945.

Truman Postpones Trip; Calls Conference on Foreign Policy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7—The White House announced today that President Truman has postponed his Caribbean trip indefinitely "because of developments."

Presidential Secretary Charles Ross, who made the announcement did not say what the developments are.

All Ross would say was:

"The Caribbean trip has been indefinitely postponed because of developments."

"Domestic or international?" a reporter asked.

"Because of developments, period—"

While Ross declined to elaborate, Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the senate Republican policy committee, told a reporter he and other congressional leaders had been asked to talk at the White House Monday about the situation presented by prospective British withdrawal of economic aid to Greece and the Greek appeal to this country for financial help.

The President shortly before had spent an hour and a half discussing Greek relief and other problems with his cabinet.

The trip was to have started tomorrow.

The Chief Executive flew back to Washington last night after a three-day goodwill mission to Mexico and a stop off at Baylor university to tell this country that "we have reached a turning point in history."

But immediately ahead lies the problem of Greece and the three choices the plight of that country leaves for the United States:

(1) direct intervention with money and materials to safeguard shaky European countries resisting Communistic pressure; (2) a half way course of supplying relief on the basis of non-interference in their internal affairs, or (3) withdrawal to a policy of strict non-intervention.

Congress was clearly awaiting the administration's statement, which Secretary of State Marshall said only Mr. Truman would make because of the "transcendent" problem involved.

Only an hour before Ross announced postponement of the Chief Executive's Caribbean trip, he had outlined Mr. Truman's schedule to reporters. The President had planned to fly to Key West, Fla., tomorrow, then visit Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and witness Atlantic fleet maneuvers.

The presidential yacht Williamsburg already is en route to San Juan, Puerto Rico, where Mr. Truman had planned to go aboard for the Caribbean cruise. He had expected to be away 16 days.

Ross announced that President Miguel Aleman of Mexico has accepted Mr. Truman's invitation to visit the United States and will arrive in Washington April 29. Details concerning the returning visit will be announced later.

Dean Acheson, acting secretary of state, conferred privately with Mr. Truman before the cabinet meeting.

There have been indications that some statement will be forthcoming soon on the British-Greek appeals for American financial assistance to Greek economy.

Ross said it was uncertain that this would come today.

Child Rushed To Hospital When Nut Lodges in Throat

Robert Wilson Jr. 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson of 280 Waterloo street, was rushed to University hospital in Columbus with parents last night by the state highway patrol, after a peanut lodged in his esophagus.

Dr. J. W. Bull was called, arriving at the Wilson home at 11 p. m. As there is no bronchial equipment available in Marion the assistance of the patrol was secured for the run to Columbus.

They left Marion at approximately 11:45 p. m. and Wilson was admitted to the hospital at approximately 12:20 p. m.

There a bronchoscope was used in an effort to remove the peanut from the child's throat. Although doctors were not certain that it had been removed he was breathing much easier when his family returned to Marion. Mrs. Wilson's father P. O. Breece drove to Columbus to bring them back.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were awaiting a call from Columbus as to the condition of their child.

ARMY DAY PROCLAIMED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7— President Truman today proclaimed Monday, April 7 as Army day and the period of April 6-12 as Army week.

Locomotive Crew Stops Train To Rescue Dog Caught in Fence

A man's best friend is his dog, according to an old adage, but if the dog in this incident could talk, he would say that a dog's best friend is a man—in this instance it was men.

This particular dog was in trouble—serious trouble—when he was spotted near Upper Sandusky Wednesday by two of the crew of a southbound C. & O. freight train, hanging by one leg on a wire fence along the right-of-way and out of howling distance of human assistance.

The train kept on moving but the picture of the trapped dog was in the minds of the trainmen. "What'll we do?" queried one. "I can't go on, thinking of that dog," was the answer. That was enough. The train was backed up some 15 car lengths, the men got out of the cab and went to the dog's assistance. It required a trip back to the engine for a pair of pliers to loosen the wire to avoid injuring the animal's leg, but he was freed in nothing flat. An examination of the leg showed it was not broken and it was evident as soon as feeling was restored the dog would be able to go on his way under his own power. The men returned to their train and continued their run on schedule.

He was just a plain mutt of uncertain ancestry, his rescuers related, but they admit that the wag of his tail and the look of relief in his eyes when he saw help coming his way repaid them for everything.

DRIVE REPORT DUE TONIGHT

Red Cross Campaign Workers To Make Second Accounting on Efforts.

Workers in the Marion county 1947 Red Cross financial campaign, who will hold their second report meeting tonight, will be heartened by the sincere words of appreciation voiced in a letter received at the local office today. The letter, from a person who prefers to remain anonymous, contained a generous contribution and was as follows: "Please add this to Marion county's contributions. I greatly appreciate the work of the Red Cross, especially the overseas clubs and canteens in which I spent considerable time." The letter was postmarked from a college town and is presumably from a veteran.

Tonight's meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock at campaign headquarters. It is expected that all divisions and wards will be represented and that reports also also will be made by the workers in the rural communities. To date $7,967.57 has been turned in by the workers. The goal for the city and county is $27,060 and the national goal is $60,000,000.

Make Contributions at Home

Contributors are again asked to make their membership contributions to the solicitor calling at their home as there will be no general solicitations made in shops, stores, factories and other places of employment, as in former years. Please remember the slogan, "Give Where You Live," is the plea of the workers.

Appreciation of the work of the loyal men and women who make up the army of solicitors in this year's campaign was voiced today by Homer D. Cole, chairman of the Marion County Chapter of the Red Cross. "They are doing a fine piece of work and I want to add my thanks and appreciation to those of the millions who have been aided in times of dire need and necessity," he stated.

"In the past few years," Mr. Cole said, "the American Red Cross has come to millions of homes throughout the world, which, through no fault of their own, suddenly became needy.

"Through the years, the Red Cross has come to mean much to all of us, and especially those whom it aided. In helping the unfortunate the Red Cross has made a great contribution to the well being of our nation. Day by day it ministers to the needy, those stricken by accident and misfortune.

"But to do the job, the Red Cross needs your help. By contributing to the drive for funds which is now in progress throughout the city and county this month, we can enable that agency to continue its work.

"I am confident the good people of Marion county, by their generous response, will keep this institution of mercy active and strong."

Morrow Co. Man Fined, Sentenced To 6 Months

Vernon D. Foust of near Mt. Gilead pleaded guilt this morning in Mt. Gilead Mayor Booker's court to charges of drunken driving and was fined $500 and costs and was sentenced to six months in the Morrow county jail.

He was arrested by the state highway patrol on route 95 east of Mt. Gilead at 10 last night. This was his second offense.

MINERS VARY IN REACTION TO COAL DECISION

Range from "Fight" to Acceptance in Comments on Court Ruling.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, March 7 — Reaction of coal miners and other union members to the U. S. supreme court ruling upholding fines against John L. Lewis and the AFL-United Mine Workers today ranged all the way from full acceptance to bitter rejection.

Thomas Evans, president of UMW Local No. 73, was told the news as he climbed out of the pit at Montour No. 10 mine of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co. in Allegheny county.

"If it was left to the men at Montour No. 10, there wouldn't be a pound of coal dug until that decision by the supreme court was reversed," he said.

He looked at other union men about him and they chorused assent.

"You can understand this, too," Evans added, "we are all 100 per cent behind John L. Lewis."

Some 1,100 Pittsburgh Coal Co. miners in the Pittsburgh-Uniontown area were idle today, but a spokesman for the Navy said this was due to an old dispute and had no connection with the supreme court decision.

About 300 of the men at the Lindley mine have walked out several times recently in a seniority dispute. They have been out all week. Today more than 800 men at the Midland and Westland mines walked out in sympathy with the Lindley men, the Navy officer reported. Except for this, production was normal in the area.

"Rotten Deal" Charged

John P. Busarello, president of UMW District 50 (Pittsburgh) said tersely that "organized labor got a rotten deal from the government and the supreme court."

At the H. C. Frick Coke Co's National No. 1 pit at Morgan, Allegheny county, Roy Gossett, member of the local union committee, told newsmen:

"Morally, the miners were right. We've been trying for years to get hospitalization. That's what the strike last November was about. If the law says Lewis was wrong, it was his lawyers who were wrong because they advised him wrong."

"Lewis is always right," broke in a fellow miner.

"That's right," agreed Gossett. "But we'll abide by the law. We'll go along with the government."

Doesn't See New Strike

Gossett said he didn't think there'd be another strike as long as the government kept control of the mines.

"No miner likes to strike unless he's got to," he added.

Some of the older miners said

Red Cross Planning Nationwide Free Blood Donor System

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 7—The American Red Cross is planning a nation-wide blood donor system that will provide transfusions free of charge, says Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The system would be similar to the one in effect for members of the armed forces during World War II. At present, sick persons buy blood from professional donors or receive transfusions from relatives.

Dr. Fishbein spoke before a joint meeting yesterday of the Society for Crippled Children and the Rotary club of Cleveland.

District of Columbia To Share Mine Fines

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7—The District of Columbia will get a $426,000 cut out of the $710,000 fines John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers must pay under the supreme court decision.

It can use the money, too. The district is so poor its commissioners have asked congress to slap a sales tax on goods sold at retail in the capital.

The revenue act of 1939 gives the district 60 per cent of all criminal fines collected by the federal district court.

Court Ruling Seems Certain To Bar Strike

Tribunal's Decision Likely To Prevent Any Spring Coal Walkout.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7—The supreme court slapdown of John L. Lewis appeared certain today to preserve peace in the coal fields this spring.

In all probability, the miners will stick to their jobs at least until July 1, when the soft coal operators are due to regain the federally held pits.

Taking advantage of this respite, the government is expected to redouble efforts to get Lewis' United Mine Workers and the operators into wage negotiations in the hope the mid-summer transfer will not bring another shutdown.

The prime consideration is that the precedent-making coal strike case—even though Lewis and his union stand convicted of contempt—is not yet out of the courts.

It is on this fact the likelihood rests that the 400,000 AFL miners will keep on digging coal for the next three and one-half months.

Lewis Mum on Plans

Lewis, genial yet distant, would not reveal his plans at once. His lawyers could seek a rehearing. The supreme court seldom grants one.

But the tribunal's 7 to 2 decision definitely blocks any strike action until the case completes one more major phase. Federal judge T. Alan Goldsborough, who handed down the original contempt ruling affirmed by the high court, still must hold trial on the central issue:

Did Lewis have the right to break off his contract with the government last November, thereby precipitating the 17-day strike?

So far the court has merely upheld Judge Goldsborough's use of an injunction to break the strike pending trial; and affirmed Goldsborough's guilty verdict against Lewis when—as the high court said—the union persisted in "a policy of defiance."

"This policy," the court ruled, "was the germ and center of an economic paralysis which was rapidly extending itself from the bituminous coal mines into practically every other major industry of the United States."

The decision spiked the pros-

NEWARK POLICE HUNT STRIP-TEASE BANDITS

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, O., March 7—Police Chief Gail Christman today pressed a search for two youthful bandits who forced four persons, including two women store clerks and Christman's brother, into a back room yesterday and forced them to disrobe at gunpoint before making their escape with part of $410 taken in two robberies.

The women were Miss Margaret Ross and Bonnie Caplinger, employes of the Lusk wine store where the robbers struck first. Christman's brother, Vernon, was robbed of $100 after the bandits had taken $35 from a cash register while holding Store Manager Charles Lusk and the women at bay.

Immediately after leaving the store, the bandits held up another wine store operated by James H. Montgomery and obtained about $275, police said.

New Auto License Plates To Go On Sale Here Monday

Auto license plates for 1947 will go on sale Monday morning, it was announced today by Walter C. Bailey, deputy registrar of motor vehicles. The office, located in the Ardrey Motor Sales office at 264 North Main street, will be open each weekday Monday through Saturday, from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., starting Monday. The office also will be open through the noon hour for convenience of persons who can call a no other time, Mr. Bailey states.

Deadline for using the 1946 plates is April 1, , and there will be no extension of time. The new plates there are two to be attached this year—are green with white letters and numerals.

Mr. Bailey is asking motorists to inspect their plates before leaving the office to make sure that they are identical and bear the correct license identification, as there has been some mix up in the packing of the plates, in some instances.

CHARGES U. S. BEATS MINERS INTO OBEDIENCE

Tells Congress Owners, UMW Could Settle If Left Alone.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 7—John L. Lewis told the senate labor committee today that he has no suggestions "at this time" on how to prevent another nation-wide coal strike.

The United Mine Workers leader made that statement in answer to a question by Chairman Taft (R-Ohio). Lewis suggested to the committee that the miners' differences with coal operators could be settled if the government "would cease using a blackjack."

In answer to Taft's query whether he has any suggestions for preventing a miners' strike, Lewis said:

"No, I don't. That's a matter of litigation before the court. I doubt if I can make any contribution at this time."

The mine leader referred to an action pending in federal court, as to whether he has the right to terminate his union's contract with the government, which has been operating the mines.

Taft Wants Answer

Taft asked what would happen to the mines and production when the government relinquishes control of the pits June 30.

"I don't have the answer to that, Senator," Lewis replied, "because I don't have power of attorney." He did not elaborate, although presumably he meant he lacks authority to speak for the miners without specific instructions.

Lewis said the coal operators "are very happy with things as they are." He said they are clearing 45 cents a ton after all charges.

"That's about $250,000,000 profits each year—about one million dollars a day each operating day," he said. "In addition, they charge off another million a day. That makes it extremely profitable." He said the miners only want to share in the profits.

Lewis said the "effect of recent intrusion of government has been to arrest collective bargaining in the coal industry."

"What's Matter with Industry?"

"What's the matter with the coal industry? Nothing's the matter except the ill treatment being accorded the employes," the miners' chief told the senate labor committee.

"That (ill treatment) is a personal matter between the coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America. And the United Mine Workers of America could settle that with the coal operators if the government would cease using a blackjack to beat the miners into submission while the coal operator takes the profits," Lewis asserted.

Most bituminous coal mines have been in government possession since last May 22.

Lewis said it is "hypocrisy to give workers the right to form unions while limiting use of the strike weapon.

"Gild Economic Lily"

Lewis calmly read part of a prepared statement. Then, summing up, the AFL leader said his mine union joined him in opposing labor legislation — "this attempt to gild the economic lily in America."

He said the miners favor keeping the free enterprise system, and he said "punitive, regulatory laws" would destroy this system.

"I think the question now before congress runs to the question the retention of our form of government, or our conception of liberty, of our freedom of individual action, our incentive system, the investment of private funds, Lewis suggested.

He said labor organizations are "the inherent checks and balances in the economic system and if you limit their efficiencies then their contribution to the economic situation is restricted and the economic system will suffer."

Lewis told Taft that there have been no negotiations with the operators "since a brief meeting in September called by Admiral Ben Morrell, then coal mines administrator."

He said the government has

SEARCH FOR PEACE AT MOSCOW

Britain Has One Objective At Moscow Conference—Security

By JACK SMITH
Associated Press Writer

LONDON, March 7 — Britain, impoverished and weakened by war, has only one major objective at the Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Moscow—to safeguard her own security.

She wants to do it by:

A four-power agreement to keep Germany totally disarmed.

Guaranteeing a government so decentralized that power can not be concentrated in the hands of few who might become aggressive.

Raising the level of German economy, so that fascism will not arise again out of popular discontent and Britain can cut occupation expense.

She also wants to renew the Anglo- Soviet mutual assistance pact to make it stronger and extend it to 50 years. This would be done in bi-lateral talks conducted while the four-power talks are going on.

Those are the main things that British hopes to get in Moscow.

What she actually expects is anybodys guess.

"Don't Expect Too Much"

"I hope the country will not expect too much from us at Moscow," Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said in a commons debate. "We have terrific difficulties to face."

The difficulties were apparent to all.

Russia was cool toward a four-power agreement as the way to keep Germany demilitarized.

Most Britons believe Russia wants a strong central government for Germany, over which she could hope to gain control.

A predominant belief in Whitehall was that Russia would favor increased German production only if a big share of it went to the Soviet as reparations.

Wants Economic Unity

Britain also hopes for an agreement on economic unification of Germany. But well-informed British officials wondered whether Russia would attach similar strings on this, although Russia, too, has called for unity.

Economic unification was a goal with wide popular support among British taxpayers, who foot a yearly bill of $320,000,000 for the British zone. The hope is that economic unification will cut costs. The British now buy food for Germany. Under unification at least some of it could come from the Soviet zone.

Britain looks to the conference, too, to reach some agreement on the role that small nations will play in later stages of the peace making. The announced British objective is to win wider participation for them.

Other Problems Too Small

Other problems did not loom over-large in British eyes.

Bevin said Poland's claim to 40,000 square miles of eastern German territory would present a "very vexed" question, but the general feeling prevailed that Britain, if she opposes the grant, will back down eventually to win some other point in a diplomatic horse trade with Russia.

Bevin has pledged support to France's claim to the Saar.

He is expected to back minor territorial claims by Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and Czechoslovakia, and some form of international control for the Ruhr.

The Soviet press has proposed a Big Four regime for the Ruhr. Informed British sources said Bevin was more likely to favor a regime including more countries.

Two Goals Sought

In any case his goals, the sources added, would be:

1. To see that no disproportionate share of the Ruhr's output goes to any one power as reparations.

2. To assure that enough remains to maintain a balanced German economy.

Britain has one key objective at Moscow which will not be on the formal agenda—to seek a true understanding between Russia and the west.

The British believe that any treaty can be sabotaged—and possibly will be—unless international suspicion and distrust are allayed. They believe there has been a slow progress in this at each conference, and hope Moscow will carry the process at least another step forward.

Still Some Uneasiness

But even sound peace treaties and east-west understanding would not allay all of Britain's uneasiness.

If both were attained, some Britons feel that Europe's basic problems — overcrowding and faulty trade relations—will remain.

An integration of the entire European economy, giving each nation a proportionate share of the overall wealth, might well do the trick, many say. Brazil suggested such an integration to the foreign got no big power comment because the deputies' assignment did not call for discussion of such a question.

Their main job was to work out procedure for drafting a treaty, on which they made small progress.

(Next—French objectives).

DAILY LENTEN MEDITATIONS

IN THE CHRIST OF THE CROSS WE GLORY

Todays Text: "Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance." Luke 3:8.

* * *

THE third chapter of Luke opens by giving us the historical setting: "Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee . . . Caiaphas being the high priest. . . ." Herod will see to it that John the Baptist is murdered; Caiaphas will plot the death of our Lord; and Pilate will be unfair as he judges Christ. It was in this day that John the Baptist came fearlessly preaching against sin and calling men to repentance.

We, too, live at a time when sin flourishes. We need to hear the Word of God calling us to turn away from the socially accepted standards of our day. Repentance without a change in our inner attitudes and outer conduct is worthless.

"Bring forth . . . fruits worthy of repentance." "By their fruits ye shall know them." Repentance must be genuine. Turn from sin.

Pastor, Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Kentucky Derby Visit To Cost More This Year

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 7—It's going to cost more to visit Louisville for the Kentucky Derby this year than at any time since before the war.

First class hotels here already have posted a price of $20 a day for double rooms, payable in advance on the basis of three days—a total of $60. Hotel operators say these prices are similar to those charged during Derby time before the OPA clamped on ceiling rates in 1943.

Even so, Arthur Newman, president of the Kentucky Hotel association and manager of a Louisville hotel, said this year's crowd for the Derby would be the "biggest ever."

GREENVILLE BLAST CLAIMS THIRD LIFE

By The Associated Press

GREENVILLE, O., March 7 — An explosion and fire in the Producers Creamery and Cold Storage Co.'s two-story plant claimed a third life today.

Orville Bertram, 53, of Greenville, died in a hospital early today of burns. Ralph Fausnaugh, 34, plant manager, and Howard Feierstein, 33-year-old professional boxer employed at the creamery, were found dead in the debris yesterday afternoon about five hours after the blast.

Bertram was not trapped in the building. He was taken to a hospital by a motorist a few minutes after the explosion.

Fire Chief Ernest R. Gauvey said he expected assistance today from a deputy state fire marshal in attempting to ascertain the cause of the blast.

A critically injured victim of the explosion related last night how he and manager Fausnaugh were just about to investigate a strange odor when the blast occurred.

From his bed at Wayne Memorial hospital, 20-year-old Robert Rammel, an employe who lives at Fort Recovery, told newsmen through swaths of bandages that he had just advised Ralph Fausnaugh, 34, that he had detected a smell different than the customary odor of ammonia gas fumes just before the building blew up.

Fausnaugh, he said, immediately returned to his office apparently to telephone for assistance in locating a leak when the explosion demolished the building.

Rescued by workers using acetylene torches, Rammel and George Pitsenbarger, 42, of Beansville were brought to the hospital with Bertram.

Today state and city fire officials probed the ruins for a possible clue to the cause of the explosion and resultant fire. The plant blast shattered windows and blew down chimneys within a block and a half radius.

Damages was estimated unofficially at $250,000.

Lewis Has "No Suggestions"

taken no steps, either, to bring about a new contract between the operators and mines.

The union chief said the government has insisted that the contract he signed with Secretary of Interior Krug for operating the mines has "no termination date."

"You mean except that it ends with termination of government possession?" Taft inquired.

"They don't even say that," Lewis rumbled. "It has been judicially held that a contract without a termination date is against the public interest.

"That leaves it a question of how long the government will continue to operate the coal mines. The mine workers have no knowledge of what the government will do—whether it will seek to extend seizure control.

"To that degree the coal industry has been socialized."

Lewis repeated that the government is standing on one side with a loaded blackjack to beat down on the heads of miners who object, and added:

"And why wouldn't the coal operators be satisfied? The government is acting as their muscle man."

"Any restriction," he said, "be it one hour, one day, or sixty days, upon the right to strike is a limitation upon a basic and fundamental liberty of the American workman."

Lewis' appearance before the senate labor committee was timed less than 24 hours after the supreme court upheld the government's right to halt a strike by injunction in the federally-operated soft coal pits.

As required by senate rules, Lewis prepared his statement for the committee in advance. Hence the UMW leader did not touch in his written testimony on the tribunal's ruling against him, but he did quote from another court opinion many years ago.

Quotes Taft's Father

That opinion was by the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft, father of Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the senate labor committee. It held that strikes are lawful and necessary to win a share of the "joint product of labor and capital."

Lewis commented "it would be hypocrisy, however, to concede these rights to labor and then to prohibit any effective exercise of these rights by labor." He added:

"Certainly when industry and finance in this country call upon legislative instrumentalities of the government to enact laws to restrain labor and neutralize its strength, they are guilty of the first step toward creating a corporate or absolute state.

"When the right to strike is limited or taken away from the workers in this country, the form of government in America is changed.

"Only Free Country Left"

"We are the one great country in which economic freedom still exists. The first duty of the congress and all of the citizens of our country is the conservation of this priceless heritage.

"The 80th congress can strengthen our free enterprise system by its action in maintaining the economic freedom and liberties of the workers. The 80th congress can also strike what might well be a fatal blow to this system by attempting to shackle the workers with restrictive and punitive laws."

The UMW leader then tore into each of the major proposals for dealing with labor problems now before the committee.

Attacks Mediation Board

First, he attacked the plan to create a federal mediation board and a cooling-off period before strikes. He said this would be "the first step toward imposing compulsory arbitration upon the millions of workers in this country, and would be the first thrust of the knife of absolutism into the heart of free America."

Without mentioning the court proceedings in his prepared remarks, Lewis said:

"To single out labor organizations and to say that they will be liable to suit in the federal courts, notwithstanding the laws governing the procedure in suits against voluntary labor organizations, is discrimination and lack of equal protection of laws under our constitution."

He was referring specifically to proposals to permit damage suits against unions breaching contracts.

"The United Mine Workers of America have a record of carrying out their contracts that is unsurpassed by any group or individual in this country," Lewis continued.

"Why should the national treasury of a labor organization be liable for damages for unauthorized breaches of contract or the unlawful acts committed by its local members? Why should any person or organization be held liable unless he or it caused the unauthorized or unlawful act, or participated in it, or ratified it?

"The relationship between officers and members of labor unions is not that of employer and employe. The officers chosen by the union are not employers of the membership. They have no control over their associations based upon the power of determining whether or not they will employ them.

Could Destroy Labor

"Legislation of this character might well destroy every labor organization in this country. There is no reason why any employer could not precipitate and provoke illegal strikes and illegal actions on the part of local unions that would permit them to litigate and tie up the funds of parent organizations."

The UMW's treasury amounted to $13,500,000 before the contempt fines were imposed.

As the question of unionization of supervisory workers, for which Lewis has been fighting two years, he said:

"Coal operators have claimed that it would endanger the life and limb of employes in the mines should their supervisors become members of a labor union. To date there has not been any acceptance on the part of the operators of the right of supervisory workers to belong to a union, and yet the record of casualties in the coal industry is one of the most appalling in all the civilized world."

Cites Disaster Figures

He cited figures to show deaths between 1910 and 1945 totaling 68,842, or an average each year of 1,912.

On another controversial issue between himself and the coal operators—the five-cent royalty on each ton of coal for a miners' health and welfare fund—Lewis had this to say:

"It is one of the vital problems that must be solved if we are to maintain the free enterprise system."

Lewis defended the closed shop and industry-wide bargaining.

"A trade union cannot enter into the fullest cooperative action with an employer if it is forced to spend its time and energy in defending itself against the efforts of the employer to destroy the union," he said.

"The claim that unions have an advantage over employers in bargaining power is hypocritical and without foundation. Those who claim that the Wagner act should be amended in order to equalize the bargaining powers of the employers with the unions ignore the facts of the situation."

DECISION

pect of another such stoppage on March 31, the deadline set by Lewis in ordering his men back to work last Dec. 7, after the lower court found him guilty.

On that very date, if usual procedure holds, the supreme court's mandate will be served formally on Judge Goldsborough. This customarily takes 25 days. And within five days thereafter, Lewis must "unconditionally" withdraw his notice purporting to break off his contract with the government. Such a notice is the high-sign for a strike.

Defiance To Cost Union

If he does not withdraw it, said the strongly worded opinion written by Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, the union must pay the full $3,500,000 fine levied by Goldsborough. If he complies, the punishment is cut to $700,000 to cover the "serious threat to orderly constitutional government" already committed. In either case, the $10,000 criminal contempt fine against Lewis personally will stand.

Thus the supreme court did more than affirm Judge Goldsborough; it held a $2,800,000 whip over Lewis to insure that no shutdown occurs until the trial judge has decided whether such a strike is legal.

The government has not yet asked Judge Goldsborough to set a trial date; court attaches said this is the probable next step, but a spokesman for the justice department reported its lawyers still are busy studying the supreme court decision.

In view of the fact that the contempt case alone took three months to settle, despite unusual speed in getting it to the supreme court, it seemed unlikely to officials that the key issue will be resolved before June. It too undoubtedly will go to the top tribunal.

That decision will determine whether the so-called Krug-Lewis agreement, signed last May between the bushy-browed union chief and the secretary of the interior, could be ended by the union alone as Lewis tried to do in November.

Lewis has contended that the Krug-Lewis pact kept alive certain old provisions—originally signed with the private operators—granting him the right to call off the contract 30 days after he gives notice of new wage demands.

The government says these old provisions were specifically superseded by the Krug-Lewis agreement; that instead, the contract terms remain valid for the duration of government seizure of the mines unless both the union and the government agree to a change.

The government's possession lasts until June 30, under President Truman's New Year's eve proclamation ending hostilities and terminating the plant-seizure provisions of the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act.

Vinson's opinion, his first major one since he became chief justice last June, was caustically critical of Lewis and his union. It called the UMW chief's refusal to obey Judge Goldsborough's Nov. 18 strike-restraining order "an attempt to repudiate and override the instrument of legal government."

The union's behavior, Vinson added, showed a "total lack of respect for the judicial process."

The majority opinion, although it was only five to four on this point while 7 to 2 on the broad issue of contempt, flatly overruled the issue on which the UMW placed its chief reliance—the argument that the Norris-LaGuardia act, which forbids courts to issue injunctions in labor disputes, applies to the government as well as to private employers. The court thereby upset the claim of Lewis' lawyers that Judge Goldsborough's restraining order was illegal and did not have to be obeyed. CIO and AFL alike joined in denouncing such "government by injunction."

Vinson held that the government in running the coal mines was exercising a "sovereign function" and had full right to enjoin any interference with that function. The Norris-LaGuardia act, the chief justice asserted, never was intended to apply against the government.

Justices Rutledge and Murphy each wrote strong dissenting opinions on this and other parts of the decision. Justice Frankfurter, in another opinion, dissented on the Norris-LaGuardia phase but said Judge Goldsborough had the right to issue his restraining order — and demand obedience to it — until he had decided whether the Norris-LaGuardia act did apply. Justice Jackson stated the same view in a brief partial dissent to the majority opinion.

Murphy in his dissent wrote: "If seizure alone justifies an injunction contrary to the expressed will of congress, some future government could easily utilize seizure as a subterfuge for breaking any or all strikes in private industries. Under some wartime or emergency power, it could seize properties at the behest of the employers whenever a strike threatened or occurred on a finding that the public interest was in peril. • • •

Truck Backfire Nearly Cost Rhine Bridgehead

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

[illegible], March 7—Two [illegible]nt a German truck [illegible] almost cost the [illegible]y its first bridge-[illegible]

Hal Boyle

[illegible] meames are the in[illegible]decide crucial battle [illegible] by tired men.

[illegible]ry-behind-the-story [illegible]can armored infan[illegible] successful invasion [illegible]n[illegible]e since 1805 storm[illegible]ized the Ludendorff [illegible] Remagen, gave it up [illegible]ot be[illegible]ng fired at them, [illegible] it back again with[illegible]no to win it—all in [illegible] of a dozen hours.

Capture Electrified World

[illegible] se capture of that [illegible] a brief bloody skirmish electrified the world, but I believe you will search war department records in vain for an account of how the same men retreated back over the span that night—leaving any enterprising Nazi commander free to blow it up if he chose. You won't find this because the boys on the scene simply didn't include the incident in their "after action" reports, although they caught a big mouthful of hell at the time from their own brass.

Here is what happened according to an officer in the 27th Infantry battalion, the unit of the Ninth armored division whose seizure of the bridge helped shorten the war and saved hundreds of American lives.

"At first we weren't sure even that it was the Rhine we had reached. Our objective was one of its tributaries but we had run off our maps

Call For Artillery Fire

"German traffic was streaming across the bridge We called for artillery fire but none came"

When a report of their unusual predicament was sent back to higher officers, they were asked "Don't you know how to read a map?"

The battalion commander answered that one by replying that to read a map you first had to have a map to read—and his outfit was ahead of its maps. They received a prompt "go ahead" order, and fought across the bridge in a brisk afternoon fire fight to the lonesome side of the Rhine.

Charges placed by German engineers entrusted with the job of destroying the bridge had only blown a couple of holes in it. Nazi authorities subsequently executed the engineers for their failure.

Took High Bluffs

"We moved two and a half companies of infantry over and took the high bluff by the bridge," the officer told me, "and the men dug in.

"They had been going steadily for three days, and were dog tired.

"During the night a German truck pulling out of a little village to the left of the bridge began backfiring '

The noise, echoing weirdly against the black mountain backdrop, sounded to the worn taut nerves of the doughboys like the lead tank in a German armored column moving in to attack No American tanks had yet been brought across to support them, and the infantrymen felt the Nazis had lured them into a trap.

Come Back One by One

'One by one the men began falling back, calling 'tanks' ' to the ones behind," the officer said, and they all came back across the bridge. They crawled into our halftracks and fell asleep

"So far as I know there were only two Americans who stayed on the east side of the Rhine—a platoon sergeant and his runner. They were asleep in their foxholes and didn't hear the others leave.

'The Germans hadn't yet begun shelling the bridge I suppose they were too disorganized. About dawn we routed all the men out of the halftracks and sent them back over again, and the armor started rolling over too"

For days the Nazis tried by planes, shells, railroad guns and even dynamite-loaded human swimmers to blast the bridge They had missed their chance By the time the weakened bridge finally collapsed the First army was across the Rhine.

But if—the eternal 'if' of warfare—the demoralized Nazis had sent back one platoon of tanks or one company of infantry to the bridge in the few hours when the demoralized Americans had left it unguarded, the proud saga of Remagen might have had a sorry ending.

"The next day we caught enough hell from headquarters as it was," said the officer

Wharton Youth, 17 Is Grange Master

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, March 7—Bard Musgrave, 17, of nearby Wharton, is believed to be the youngest subordinate Grange Master in Ohio, if not in the United States

A senior at Wharton High school, he was installed Jan. 7 as master of Lincoln Grange No 1957. He is assisting his father in the operation of a 180 acre livestock farm two miles west of Wharton.

After graduation Bard will take over the operation of the farm The Musgraves are breeders of purebred Guernsey cattle and Shropshire sheep They call their homestead "Guerndot Farm"

Bard is vice president of his class at school, after having been president in three years, president of his Sunday school class, vice president of the Wharton FFA chapter, and was president of his 4-H club four years and reporter two

The young master is planning a membership drive for the Grange for the summer months. Older members say a slate of young candidates was named for this year's election at Lincoln Grange to keep the younger members interested in the order In addition to the 17-year-old master they have a 17-year-old overseer, a 20-year-old lecturer and a 15-year-old chaplain.

McKeown, pastor of St Peter's Catholic church, speaking to members of the Wyandot County Hog Improvement association at their fourth annual banquet meeting here this week

The new way which must be adopted now, he added, is to live and help to live, the Christian way of life The welcome address was given by the president, Henry Schilling, of Eden township Henry Sneeringing, also of Eden was toastmaster and Miss Betty Brooks of Upper Sandusky, Wyandot county home demonstration agent led group singing. Union Co. Assessed For Conservancy District

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, March 7—Union county taxpayers will have to dig down and come up with an additional $7,000 in taxes within the next year as a result of a three-tenths mill assessment levied against all owners of real estate and utilities in this county by the board of directors of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district. Smith Rejects Foreign Plan

Congressman Is Opposed To Taking On British Military Burden in Greece.

WASHINGTON, March 7—Following the recent secret White House conference of the President and congressional leaders of both parties and official announcement that Great Britain had asked the United States to assume the burden of maintaining her military position in Greece, Congressman Frederick C Smith (R-8th Ohio) told the house Tuesday: "I, for one, refuse to be bound by any agreement, whether by commission or omission, that may have been entered into by any leaders of my party to furnish Britain aid for maintaining her military establishment in Greece or anywhere else"

Cong Smith said such a proposal by Britain in substance amounts to the British officially informing the United States that British economy and military power have become so weakened that they are no longer able to hold their empire together.

Point of Agreement

The congressman said: "Of course, dissolution of the British Empire would have deleterious repercussions on the United States. No one can envision the harm that would come to our people should this eventuate All thinking persons agree that this will be great if worst does come to worst"

He added: "Nothing can be done to save much of anything for any nation that neglects its real seers and follows a false god like Lord Keynes. Even should the United States by military force hold intact the British Empire, England under her socialist system could not possibly maintain it It should not require much discussion to show that we could not long maintain it for her."

"What," asked the congressman, "are we starting off on another round of lend lease? Is the United States again to become the arsenal" And if so, for what? And are we going to complete the whole cycle for the third time?

Problems Ahead

"Guns and ships now for Britain to hold her military position in Greece, as kingpin of the Mediterranean Who would be next on the list? It is already hinted that the Dardanelles also present something in the nature of a key to the control of the Mediterranean and much that lies beyond Would not the provisioning of Britain with munitions of war to fortify her position in Greece anticipate the need to do the same for her in Turkey?

"The United States will have to stop somewhere. It is sheer madness to believe that we can support economically and financially the whole world, The cult of internationalism has already committed our nation to more than it can deliver and endure. It must be stopped before it is too late.

"The United States could do something to dampen the fires of communism that are raging in Europe and elsewhere by simply discontinuing the ill-advised policy of pouring out financial and other aid to the peoples involved When we stop feeding and pampering them they will go to work and start on the way to sanity."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Nails Tell Doctor a Lot

Modern women are quite right in regarding the finger nails as an important element in the beauty of the hands. Well-kept, healthy nails assuredly add to the appearance, but they are important in other ways too. Not only do they protect the tips of the fingers but allow us much more dexterity than we would have without them

In addition, the appearance of the nails—au naturel and without polish, of course—may be of some help to the doctor in indicating some unusual or abnormal condition. For example, a nervous, high-strung person may have bitten nails. People who have long, continued heart or lung disorders may have blue nails with some swelling of the ends of the fingers. After severe illness such as scarlet fever, there may be ridges crosswise on the nails. Psoriasis, a skin condition which causes a scaly eruption particularly over the elbows and knees, may cause the nails to be pitted.

The finger nails grow. The growing part is the white or half-moon area at the base of the nails. It has been noted that the nails grow more actively during pregnancy and in warm weather The nails of young people grow faster than those of older ones.

White spots in the nails are called leukonychia They are due to air in the substance of the nails which is deposited there during growth They may, perhaps, occur if, during manicuring, the nail base is pushed back too vigorously

Another common disorder of the nails is brittleness. Among the causes suggested for this condition are repeated injury as in typewriting, a deficiency of vitamin A, or the frequent use of the wrong kind of nail polish remover. If the nails split, the use of a file or emery board should be avoided. It is suggested, rather, that the nail be clipped behind the split area Putting on some mild oil may help to prevent brittleness of the nails although, of course, the oil will not strengthen the nail.

In persons suffering from anemia or a lack of coloring in the blood, or from some long continued sickness, the nails may become spoon-shaped, with a depression in the center of them

Ringworm infection may do a great deal of damage to the nails as may also eczema, a chronic skin disease. In ringworm the nails become soft lose their luster and are no longer transparent About the same sort of changes may occur in eczema

If the nails are not normal, of course, a skin specialist should be consulted who will determine what disorder is present and advise proper treatment If the nails are normal, they should be kept that way with proper care.

Any Questions, Mr. Lewis?

THE Supreme Court of the United States has cleared up a muddled situation of long standing: whether the labor-union bosses or the government should take precedence in a knock-down-drag-out fight.

The court's decision in the case of the United States of America vs. the United Mine Workers of America is in favor of the government. This establishes a post-New Deal precedent. Apparently, there have been some changes made.

Two things in the court's majority reasoning are noted with relish. One is the relationship observed between the United Mine Workers and John L. Lewis, its dictatorial executive. The union, declares the court, cannot dissociate itself from its executives in legal responsibility. Mr. Lewis acted in contempt of court when he breached the union's contract with the government. The union, by acting on his illegal decision to breach the contract and by obeying his illegal orders, also showed contempt of court. That kind of reasoning applied widely enough would put members of unions on guard against high-riding executives.

The other point of court reasoning with far-reaching effect is reliance on congressional intent in passing the Norris-LaGuardia bill to limit federal court injunctions in labor disputes. Mr. Chief Justice Vinson was in the House of Representatives when the bill was passed 15 years ago this month. He knew that congress never intended to bar the sovereign power from protection against its own employes—miners, in this case. The house debate showed clearly that this never was the intent of the bill, thereby knocking the props from under the United Mine Workers defense. Mr. Lewis still owes his $10,000 fine for imagining he was bigger than the government. His union owes $700,000, unless it has a change of heart in five days, in which event it will owe the $3,500,000 named in the district court decision.

Any question, Mr. Lewis?

Rassling the Bear

SECRETARY OF STATE MARSHALL'S restrained optimism as he leaves with his retinue to rassle the bear in Moscow reflects a similar state of mind at home.

The time for unrestrained optimism about the outcome of negotiations with Russia is long past. No attempt is made any more to conceal the fact that there isn't room for optimism about a national society proceeding on the assumption that it must destroy all other societies for the sake of its own security.

The soviet Union won American sympathy by the courage and sacrifice of the Russian people during the war. It has chosen to throw away that sympathy for the sake of its political ambitions.

The only hope of peace remaining is of peace through balances of power, a game at which our statesmen are untried. Their early—and alarming tendency—is to seem to believe they can do it by impoverishing the United States. If they wonder why their countrymen are alarmed, they should remember that the British empire's disintegration is an ill omen right now for a favorable outcome of power-balancing, especially by inexperienced statesmen.

Note for a Phone Pad

THIS week being the centenary of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, the life of that resourceful Scotsman is reviewed, and commentators on the American scene evaluate anew the effect on civilization of what he called his "improvement in telegraphy."

They point out that the American people have more than 8,000,000 telephones, more than 40,000,000,000 telephone conversations annually.

This last figure is a significant one. If sometimes the telephone seems to be a nuisance, if sometimes it is put to trivial uses, remember that in 40,000,000,000 of anything there are bound to be some duds. The conveniece of the telephone far outweighs the fact that sometimes it acts like an importunate child and won't hush.

Mistaken Identity

SOME of the younger members of the house of representatives are perturbed because they are being mistaken for page boys.

It is bad enough to be a stranger in the strange land that is Washington; it is disillusioning for a fair-sized trout at home to become a minnow in the Washington whirlpool, and it is disappointing to see one's roseate dreams lost in the parliamentary shuffle. But it must be downright maddening when, on top of all that, a congressional veteran addresses you as "Hey, boy!"

As a result, page boys will have to don uniform garb—blue serge suits, white shirts and black ties.

The only alternative would have been for the congressmen to don uniforms and let the page boys dress as they wished. This hardly would have been practical, congressmen being what they are—of all shapes, sizes, temperaments and political hues. The word "uniform" just isn't applicable where they're concerned.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Moscow Conference Expected To Accomplish Little.

WASHINGTON, March 7 — The Moscow conference of foreign ministers opening Monday is expected to follow the usual routine. After six weeks of torrential narranguing, the Big Four will agree on nothing and designate their deputies to determine what form nothing shall take. Announcement will made agreement has been made on fundamentals, but fundamentally the agreement will concern only superficialities. This is what officials think.

In all other particulars, the meeting approximates one which might be held in an icehouse in Antarctica before the spring thaw. Mr. Byrnes, the former state secretary, had advised Russia he would take a delegation of 60 but General Marshall decided, when he came into office, he would need 100. Russia was advised of this. But Marshall's final list was chopped 16 to a total of 84, presumably on the urgings of Russia, and our ambassador there, Bedell Smith, who constantly prodded Marshall about hotel accommodations being unavailable. While Russia is quite willing and planning to take over management of the entire world, she had not been able to produce in 20 years of revolution enough hotel rooms in her own capital to house a respectably sized council of ministers.

The Press Is Limited

The newspaper predicament was equally revealing. The press arrangers here had been told repeatedly that after Moscow swept out its two hotels, and gave one of its colossal structures to the press, it could not house many. The arrangers cut the press list to 52, and conceded themselves to be quite slick, in their slashing. For one thing they put the New York Daily Worker No. 35 on the list, believing Moscow would never keep its own paper out, and thus we would get at least 35 correspondents in. We got only 15 to 20 according to late accounts, later changed by Ambassador Smith to exactly 36. The accounts are not trustworthy because Moscow was supposed to furnish visas for a press delegation of surely 20 and told us so, but when some of the men applied for their visas at the Russian embassy, nothing has been heard of the matter. State department authorities confessed a few days before Marshall left they did not know how many of our men would get in.

And mind you the press delegation did not only include reporters but one still cameraman who was to take all pictures as a pool man for all the outside world, a movie man who could not get along without an accompanying engineer although his product was similarly to be pooled, and two radio men to supplement some American radio representatives now there. The remaining reporters were not to be UN or Washington experts, but mostly British, French and other representatives of American newspapers already on the job in Europe.

Inquiries Ignored

Never in all history of major international conferring has there been such a conference. The Russians would not answer inquiries, promised visas would not show up as promised, needed delegates and good reporters alike were kept out. To a large extent, we went into the meeting flying blind on one motor.

Now there was just a little too much of all this to allow anyone to expect great things in Moscow, especially in view of semi-official subterranean reports to the contrary. One such recent report, not viewed outside the few top officials, has said Russia is absolutely convinced collapses will come in Britain and the United States within the next 18 months and will follow an undeviating policy against any agreements which would impede such expectations. While the Russians do not intend to start anything, apparently also they do not intend to let anything develop which would settle world affairs. Thus revolutionary Moscow has become the defender of the status quo, if not the obstructionist who expects to take the world over in 18 months. (If they do, I certainly hope they will give themselves more hotels.)

The only trouble with her calculations is she is in worse economic shape than nearly anyone. What little truth has seeped out from her iron curtain suggests she would collapse if the people were not enslaved to poverty by dictatorship.

Knows Communist Ways

Into this peculiar setting Marshall is carrying an experience in Communist tactics, well grounded in China, and in the earlier world war meetings of the Roosevelt administration. All important diplomatic reports came over his desk when he was chief of staff, but during the Byrnes regime he was absent, so he is not yet quite up to date on Russian diplomatic arguing techniques. He will not limit discussions to the Austrian and German treaties, which alone are on the agenda, but expects to talk of many current diplomatic affairs.

The Russians on the other hand, prepare for these things quite thoroughly. Before British General Montgomery's visit they held a meeting of all heads of departments of state in order to perfect a program which would make him happy while there. No doubt they have done the same thing for Marshall.

My personal guess is we may expect more developments than 16 reporters could cover. Certainly the world is not going to allow itself to continue to drift where the iron Lorelei is waiting. Perhaps the issue may be met at Moscow.

Young Man Beware of Amateurs

Divorcees make better wives than girls who have never been married before, a Chicago psychiatrist reveals after a survey.

With used cars bringing exorbitant prices, it's good to learn of one field in which the best bargains are on the second-hand market.

But the news should not have come as any surprise. Women are like ships, and every seafarer knows to avoid maiden voyages.

Not only are those who have traveled a road better able to avoid the bumps, but second marriages succeed where former ones failed because one learns by experience not to expect so much.

A divorce court can give a woman back her maiden name . . . but never her illusions.

Still, if matrimony is one of the realms wherein practice makes perfect, Peggy Hopkins Joyce long since should have become the ideal wife.

He Keeps Congress in Trim

Aged Barber Has Worked on Many Famous Faces.

By JANE EADS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Of politics James H. Neale knows a-plenty but he "aint saying anything."

When Rep. John Garner, later speaker and vice president, got him his job in 1917, he told the little Negro barber, now 76, he was not to "meddle in politics, just to take good care of the Congressmen."

Neale, a mere wisp of a man whose white coat reaches his knees, and whose grimy eyeshade is worn well down over his wrinkled brow, can and does talk about the sad state of hirsute affairs on Capitol Hill.

There are more bald heads in the 80th congress, he says, than he's seen in many a day. He figures that Republicans tend more to baldheadness than Democrats.

"What about Sam Rayburn, minority leader?" I asked reminding the barber that a colleague of the Texan had recently twitted him about the "fine head of skin" he had.

"Him—why he's only one Democrat in a hundred," says Neale.

"I'm waitin' for Mr. Rayburn now," says the little man puffing carefully at a half-inch of old cigar stuck on the point of a pencil stub.

"It's not exactly a hair-cut, I'll be giving him—just a sort of fringe-trim. He gets one about every 10 days.

"Dandies" Passing Out

Neale says he has seen better barber-shop days.

"The day of the dandy is gone forever," he says. "The day was when men were more particular about their hair, wanting it to comply with the features of their face.

"Now all they want is what I calls a barroom cut, with me running the clipper up their heads leaving their necks and around their ears all skinny and white."

Neale says he shaved and fixed up Mr. Garner for years.

"I used to keep his eyebrows even, up until the time he became speaker of the house. From then until the time he left Congress, you couldn't do anything to them except put a comb through them."

Neale also used to shave the late "Uncle" Joe Cannon, and though the longtime speaker from Illinois was practically bald he had a good healthy beard. Neale describes it as a "Lincoln beard," He used to like to work on it.

Former Rep. Tinkham of Massachusetts also had a beard "what was a beard." Neale says it was a pleasure to trim it.

Good Eyes Required

Neale says his eyes aren't so good now. He wouldn't want to be bothered with beards again. He explains you have to cut them too carefully to make them look nice and "it's a strain on the eyes."

The barber says he is a Democrat, but when he first came to the Capitol barber shop he was assigned to work on the Republican side. The barber shop in those days was divided in the same way as the floor of the House of Representatives—West Side, Republican, East Side, Democrat.

In his daily wielding of scissors and blade, whether its haircutting, fringe-trimming or shaving, Neale says a man's politics has little to do with his attitude in the chair.

"I take 'em as they come, and give them the best I've got," he says.

Truman and Our Foreign Policy

By JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON, March 7—In the past week the optimistic foundation of American world policy has quite literally been shattered by a series of hammer-blows. President Truman has yet to decide what to do about it. Currently, he is understood to be considering three broad alternatives, each advocated by certain of his advisors.

Alternative one is to ask congress for help in building a whole new and permanent foundation under our world policy. This would require generous grants of authority and financing on the scale of several billions of dollars. Alternative two is to ask for a limited, temporary but honest repair job. This would still require a lot of authority and much money. And alternative three is to propose inserting an inadequate prop or two at the points where the structure is in actual danger of instant collapse. This would be relatively cheap.

Adoption of either of the first two alternatives will undoubtedly result in a struggle between the President and congress. And this struggle would probably be so far-reaching in its effects as to alter the presidential - congressional relationship for good and all. Adoption of the third alternative will perhaps avoid the struggle, but will result in no genuine improvement of the appalling aspect of world affairs. It is a grim choice, but events have forced it upon the President.

Widespread Problems

First the Greek situation began to deteriorate. The rising Greek crisis imposed demands which the British government lacked the resources to meet. The security of Turkey depends upon Greece, thus London notified Washington that British economic support would be withdrawn from both Greece and Turkey. Then former President Herbert Hoover brought home from Germany a horrifying report of conditions there. And finally in China Premier T. V. Soong resigned, leaving the national government much weakened and in obvious need of urgent assistance to prevent its ultimate collapse. The Greek crisis is only part of a world crisis, caused everywhere by the same poverty and economic insecurity, which result in the same political instability.

There is only one means of allaying this world crisis, either locally or generally. That is to finance the measures of relief and reconstruction which will put an end to poverty and insecurity. Such is the principle on which are based all three alternative courses of action now being examined by the President. The question is not what to do, but how much to do. Very roughly speaking, the differences between the three alternatives are as follows.

Under alternative one, authority would be concentrated somewhere in the administration to undertake the task of economic reconstruction in the many and widely separated areas where American interests are involved. Estimates of the cost have varied from 5 billions to 10 billions, with the higher figure considered the more conservative (although even this would be a trivial sum to spend on reasonably dependable political security). At any rate, large-scale financing would be demanded. And having thus demonstrated this country's willingness to bear a fairer share of world responsibility, the President would also request the British and other Western nations to continue to join in the great effort.

Second and Third

The second, more limited alternative is represented by a broad program for shoring up the situation in the Middle East, with special emphasis on Greece and Turkey. The state department's economic section presented such a program to Secretary of State George C. Marshall last week, after the British intentions in the Middle East had become known. It would cost somewhere between 1 billion and 1½ billion. As for the third alternative, it is purely local action, perhaps confined to Greece alone. It would cost comparatively little, and probably achieve less.

The President and Secretary Marshall gave the congressional leaders the first installment of the grim facts last week. The senators and representatives were briefed on both Greek and Turkish situations although the latter was not reported. The real problem now facing the White House is how to deal with an economy-minded congress, which has for months been living in a kind of dream world. Obviously, a restricted demand for authority and funds will in some respects meet with a more friendly Congressional reception. Yet certain of the President's advisors argue that the first alternative, of demanding the fullest powers and most ample funds, will be the best tactics in the long run. Their argument is simple.

The facts of the world situation, so they say, urgently require broad scale action. The emergency is everywhere. We must either meet it everywhere or accept the eventual creation of a power vacuum throughout Europe and Asia which only the Soviet Union can fill. This choice, between acting decisively now, or giving the Soviet Union the chance to become the unchallengeably predominant world power, is the real issue confronting us. It is, bluntly speaking, an issue of survival or non-survival. The best approach, therefore, is to base the appeal to congress on the real issue. This the American people understand.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday March 7, 1937. Premature spring weather in Marion and vicinity brought out golfers, fishermen and scores of motorists. The balminess was to be of short duration as the weatherman predicted "much colder and snow flurries." The high temperature reading was 62.

Salem Evangelical church was well filled for a program of favorite hymns and songs by the church choir and the Bel Canto Opera guild.

A family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Baker of Harrison street was in honor of their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Melinda Jane Caldwell, 87, believed to be the oldest member of the Bethel M. E. church, died at her home on North State street.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams of Akron, former residents of Marion.

John Abel, past state president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, represented the grand lodge at a meeting in Mansfield.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, March 7, 1927.

Governor Vic Donahey signed the Abele bill decreeing that eastern standard time would be the official time throughout Ohio.

Marion residents with a yen for acting were offered an opportunity to appear in the production, "The Poor Nut," to be shown on the Grand theater stage the following Wednesday night. The "job" was to make up the audience when Elliott Nugent, "the poor nut," got his chance to run for Ohio State against Wisconsin in the track meet.

Mrs. A. A. Starner of South Main street was in New York City to attend the graduation exercises at Bellevue Hospital Training School for Nurses where her daughter Virginia was a member of the class.

Mrs. C. N. Sautter was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary to the Marion Chapter, National Association of Letter Carriers, at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. C. A. Russell of North High street.

Miss Elizabeth Hinklin was elected president of Le Mercure club at a meeting held at the home of Miss Helen Jacoby on South State street. Other officers chosen were Miss Marian McNeil, vice president; Miss Jacoby, secretary; Mrs. Theodore Morgan, treasurer; Mrs. Floy Wideman, critic and Misses Una Ackley, Mary Pennock and Frances Jennings, program committee.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"Oh Say (Hear! Hear!) Can You See?"

It was proposed the other day that England merge with the United States of America. With King George (shorn of his title), Winston Churchill and others serving in the U. S. Senate. That will come to pass, the day a way is found to cross a tea muffin with a "tailshot," and an Oxford class clamors for bleacher seats at a Brooklyn baseball game.

* * *

Made half in jest and half in earnest, the idea has America by the ears. And the English are in a dither, too. We hope the matter isn't pressed too speedily. A new war is apt to be started over the mere problem of a new joint flag to be designed by a committee composed of the Duke of Windsor, Senator Hickenlooper, Gracie Fields, Francis Perkins, Ernie Bevin and Alf Landon.

* * *

And UN won't know what a real job is until it is asked to handle the problem of finding an artist to merge the figures of Uncle Sam and John Bull, removing the chin whiskers substituting a double chin and making the vest more of a Picadilly weskit.

* * *

What an election it will be with Walter Beatrice Lillie, Bob Wagner, Fred Astaire, Vandenberg, the Duke of Argyle and the Eton socker team all running.

* * *

It will be one weird experience when the American voters see the name of General Montague, the Gloomy Dean Clement Atlee and the board of directors of a grouse shooting club in a Ward Eight voting machine.

* * *

The Horse Guards will look odd throwing around the White House, even if interming ed with a few visiting piano players and Missouri politicians, and we look for considerable opposition to the idea of having a Lord Mayor of Washington.

* * *

Anything is possible in days like these and we have been so dumfounded by unexpected events and screwball trends that we wouldn't collapse if we got up some morning and found Harry Truman riding down Pennsylvania avenue in a gold carriage drawn by 12 white horses and with four or five spare footmen. Or read that the Honorable Winston Churchill was singing hillbilly songs outside the Senate Chamber as a prelude to entering and making his long expected speech "Do We Need Stronger State Laws To Protect the American Hamburger Sandwich?"

* * *

Of course we won't swallow such stuff until we read that a Knight of the Garter has joined the Elks and that the Northumberland Hunt Club membership has gone over in a body to the Tammany Hall Chowder and Marching Club.

* * *

In the meantime, folks, keep close to the news and have the spirits of ammonia ready for anything.

* * *

The time to get really startled is when you tune in on your radio and hear a Senate filibuster over the question of whether the Mediterranean should be taken over and widened through a tax on cigarettes.

* * *

Or read in your daily paper that Churchill and Taft came to blows in the Senate on a matter of whether Greece should have more electoral votes than New Jersey and what proportion of our American boys were somewhere in the Balkans and the Himalayas.

ONE contention of the school teachers of the country is that while the pupils have always brought them an apple all the cities have ever given them has been applesauce.

Admiral Byrd and his party have left the Antarctic. It was no use. They could hear those radio comedians up there, too.

The Three R's must seem to Little Willie to be Readin', Riotin' and Recrimunations.

Get Goin' Maw

By TRUMAN TWILL

In connection with an indisposition that has low the lady of the house, we have been making a clinical study of housework.

What is it that makes housework a pain in the neck and causes females to work their fingers to the bone, year in and year out, until they get that beat-up look and decide life is not worth living?

A man wouldn't put up with such drudgery any longer than would be required to do something about it, but women have been putting up with it for thousands of years and making no progress.

The first thing a man would get rid of in housework is the notion that one member of a household should be regarded as the official drudge by all its other members and charged with sole responsibility for dish-washing, sweeping, cooking and so on.

The whole dismal, grisly business of housework would be put on a cooperative basis, unless economic circumstances permitted employment of a professional drudge. Otherwise everybody would do his share. Many hands would make light work.

Because too many cooks spoil the broth, the best cook in the outfit would be in general charge of meals, but that would not preclude the possibility of help in the kitchen. When the cooking was done, someone else could pile in and clean up the dirty dishes.

Beds would be made by the sleepers who unmade them. Ash trays would be emptied by the persons who filled them, newspapers and magazines put away by the persons who read them, clothing put where it belonged by the persons who wore the clothing, bathtubs tidied up by the latest users and so on.

For washing, ironing, floor-scrubbing and the like, there would be special committees, with rotating membership. The lady of the house, instead of being the drudge for a gang of ingrates, would be the executive vice president in charge of a cooperative society, with power to levy fines and inflict punishment.

At the first sign of indifference . . . the drudge will take care of it so why worry? . . . the ingrates could figure out where their next meal was coming from, who was going to make the beds, sweep the rugs, scrub the floors, clean the wallpaper and wash the clothes. It wouldn't take them long to see the light.

No one would be expected to make a career of housework for fun. Each person expecting to enjoy the comforts of home would put in what he expected to take out. Gone forever would be the assumption that certain persons had been designated by Holy Writ as washers of dishes, scrubbers of floors and picker-uppers of clutter.

That's the way men would do it if responsibility for housework were shifted to their shoulders permanently. In the meantime, maw, where'd you hide the socks, when is supper going to be ready, the beds made and the dirt your loved ones tracked in cleaned up?

Ninety-five per cent of the world's population lives north of the equator.

About 200,000 people are engaged full time in the U. S. fishing industry.

Dayton Man Speaks Before 328 at Foremen's Club Party

[illegible] hundred and twenty-eight persons, including members of the [illegible] Foremen's club, their wives and guests, heard an address in a lighter mood when they met Thursday night in the [illegible] temple for the club's first "ladies" night" observance.

Speaker was Glen Massman of Dayton, executive secretary of the Dayton Foremen's club, the nation's largest club in the field. His subject was "What Are You Worrying About?" Theme of his talk was that "a smile is the cheapest thing you have that will provide the biggest dividends." He declared that a smile and a laugh were among one's greatest assets and would cure many of the world's ills.

Calls Fear Greatest Enemy

He declared worry as fear, man's greatest enemy. As a tonic or stimulant for fear he listed enthusiasm, ambition, resourcefulness and faith.

Enthusiasm, he pointed out, enables the opportunity of representing oneself, a desire to "sell" rather than "buy" an idea. Ambition, he suggested, could be interpreted as "the world has a living for you and dares you to get it as opposed to the idea that the world owes you a living." He called resourcefulness the ability to keep mentally awake and to adopt measures of overcoming problems.

Faith in oneself is the final weapon against fear, he stated, and he added "If you haven't faith in yourself, how can you expect others to have faith in you?" To combat fear we also need faith in an Abiding Power, he told the audience, and quoted his adult version of the widely-known nursery prayer: "Now I rise to go to work, I pray the Lord I will not shirk; if I should die before the night, I pray the Lord my work's all right."

Introduced by Douthitt

Mr. Massman was introduced by H. H. Douthitt, president of the Marion Foremen's club. Brief remarks were made by H. E. Webster, club secretary, regarding future activities of the organization.

Seated at the speaker's table with Mr. and Mrs. Massman were Mr. and Mrs. Douthitt, Mr. and Mrs. Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Marble and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ward. Mr. Mason is president of Marion Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Ward is vice president of the the Marion Foremen's club and Mr. Marble is financial secretary.

Several musical selections were sung by the Harding High school girls' ensemble, under the direction of Miss Rose Marie Hinamon. The dinner was served by Lydia Chapter No. 85, Order of Eastern Star.

ALLEGED OHIO KIDNAPER RULED SANE, RESPONSIBLE

Must Stand Trial on Check Passing Charge.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 7 — A 23-year-old ex-convict under indictment in the New Year's day kidnaping of a 20-year-old Ohio State university senior is a "psychopathic personality" but not mentally defective, Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett reported today.

The accused man, Robert Haine Hemming of Columbus, was brought here yesterday after 30 days of observation at Lima State hospital for the criminally insane. Bartlett said Dr. R. E. Bushong, superintendent of the Lima institution, wrote that Hemming was fully responsible for his behavior and did not require hospitalization.

"As a matter of fact, he has somewhat superior intelligence. If it is evident he has not used his intelligence in a constructive manner," Bushong wrote, adding: "Inasmuch as special facilities are not yet been created for treatment of this type of person, my suggestion is that he be dealt with as an ordinary offender."

Bartlett said Hemming would be arraigned soon in criminal court on charges of issuing worthless checks, and that an indictment in the kidnaping of Miss Mary Virginia Kimberly would be held in abeyance.

Reports Electric Drill Stolen from Depot

Theft of a used electric hand drill from one of the warehouses at the Marion Engineer Depot was reported yesterday by Col. D. Lee Hooper, commanding officer. It was described as a quarter-inch, heavy duty drill of Sioux manufacture. The serial number is 10,103. Because the drill is the property of the federal government the post security officer is investigating the theft. The federal bureau of investigation has been notified.

HERBERT SIGNS FINISHED BILL

Climaxes 9-Week Legislative Session by Okaying First Law.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 7 — Gov. Thomas J. Herbert climaxed nine weeks of work by Ohio's 97th general assembly yesterday by signing the first finished bill to cross his desk.

Herbert affixed his signature to a $9,050,000 appropriation measure to start the highway department's spring maintenance and improvement program. The bill was drawn by Rep. Harold V. Martz (R-Warren), house finance committee chairman, and had been passed unanimously.

During a busy day, prior to adjourning for the weekend, the legislature yesterday:

Decided to consider a house education committee resolution next Wednesday calling for investigations of "alleged Communist and un-American activities "in state-supported universities and colleges.

Held a senate hearing on the agriculture department bill during which State Agriculture Director Frank N. Farnsworth reiterated that retention of six-year terms for subordinate officials was still considered desirable by department chiefs to "provide greater continuity" of such programs as eradication of animal diseases.

Got a left-handed compliment for its reception of the Daniels-Cramer bill to increase state aid to public schools from the executive secretary of Ohio Friends of Public Schools.

Concerning the resolution to investigate "un American activities" in the state universities, the house called for reference the action of the U. S. house of representatives which extended the life of the un-American activities committee upon a promise schools and colleges would be investigated for subversive activities.

The Ohio resolution, authored jointly by Rep. Claude Woodward (R-Montgomery) and Rep. Paul R. Barnes (R-Franklin) proposes creation of a five man committee of the house to conduct the inquiry.

During the agriculture hearing, it was brought out that the controversial six-year term provisions for the state board of agriculture's executive secretary (Edwin J. Bath, former Ohio Farm Bureau lobbyist) and five chiefs undoubtedly would be deleted from the bill before it went to the senate floor.

Marion Business Women's Club Entertains Brides from Europe

Marion's G. I. war "brides" like American cosmetics and our system of "dollars and cents." Americans are friendly, our older women look "so youthful," we have so many clubs, our evening dinners are "so early" and the food "rich," but we have "no good potatoes!" These were among the things that members of the Business and Professional Women's club learned at a dinner meeting at Hotel Harding Wednesday night. One of the young women from overseas wonders why we still call them "brides," since some of the war wives have been married as long as four years. Seven of the wives of former Marion servicemen, representing five different countries, were guests of the club and were asked to air their views in a round table discussion following dinner. The meeting was held under auspices of the international relations committee of the club headed by Mrs. Grace Zachman.

United Nations Theme

Tables were decorated with miniature flags of the United Nations, red candles, and bud vases with red carnations, and the speakers table was centered with an arrangement of red and white carnations. Special music was by a piano duo, Alan Cleveland and Frederick Lacey. Miss Margaret Huffman and Miss Ruth Kleinmaier directed the round table discussion, and the special guests answered questions about their respective homelands. Each wore a red carnation and fern, special favors of the club. All had been engaged in some type of war work in the war years, nursing, clerical, secretarial, educational, and one wife was employed by the U. S. army. They spoke of the deprivations, strict rationing of clothing and food, during the war, and each told how she had met her husband. Miss Huffman rounded out the discussion by pointing toward the significance of better understanding of various countries in the total effort for making a permanent world peace.

List of Guests

The special guests were Mrs. James Murphy from Scotland; Mrs. Edwin Wood, Belgium; Mrs. Alfred Davis and Mrs. Robert Miley, France; Mrs. Paul Lindsey, Ireland; and Mrs. Robert Taft and Mrs. Robert Askew, England. Miss Mary Margaret Dunn was a guest, and introduced as new members of the club by the president, Miss Mary Kay Miley, were Miss Ferol Burley, Miss Dorothy Haynes, Mrs. Estelle Allen, Miss Leona Smith, and Mrs. Florence Detwiler. Other members of the International relations committee besides Mrs. Zachman and Miss Huffman are Miss Mary F. Schuler and Miss Elotha Rogers.

Announcement was made that the club will sponsor an appearance of the Harmonaires from radio station WLW in a program of music at Edison Junior High school Tuesday night, April 15. A business meeting will be held at "Our House," youth center of Epworth Methodist church on South Vine street, March 19.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Your 1947 Estimate

This is the eleventh of 12 articles explaining who must do what about his income tax returns.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, March 7 — March 15 is the deadline for filing a final return on 1946 income and paying whatever tax is still due.

Most people, when they've done that, won't have anything further to do until March 15, 1948, when they settle up on 1947 taxes.

James Marlow

That's because most people make under $5,000 and full 1947 tax will be withheld from wages and salaries under $5,000 in 1947.

But several million people won't have the full tax — or any tax — withheld from them in 1947. That's because:

They'll make over $5,000 or will have the kind of income from which tax isn't withheld.

So March 15 will be a deadline for them, too. By that date—

They must file an estimate of their 1947 tax and make the first of four payments on the difference between the tax withheld (if any) and the estimated full 1947 tax.

(The other three payments are due June 15, Sept. 15, and Jan 15, 1948).

Three Groups in Category

Three kinds of people will have to do this. You're one of them—

1. If your income from wages or salary in 1947 will be more than $5,000, plus $500 for each exemption besides your own.

Example: You, married, will have a $5,500 salary. Full tax is withheld up to $5,000, plus each exemption except your own. You claim a $500 exemption for your wife. You don't have to file an estimate.

Example: You, married, one child, will have a $7,000 salary. Full tax is withheld up to $6,000 in your case, because of those two $500 exemptions for your wife and child.

You'll have to file an estimate and start paying the difference between the tax withheld and the full tax due on $7,000.

2. If you expect to make $500 or more income from which no tax is withheld—such as a landlord with rents or a doctor with fees — you'll have to file an estimate of your 1947 income and the tax on it and start paying the tax.

3. If you'll have income of more than $100 from which no tax is withheld — in addition to income from which tax is withheld —and if the two incomes total $500 or more — you'll have to file an estimate and make the first payment on the difference between the tax withheld and the full tax due.

Example: You'll make $4,000 in wages from which tax is withheld, but you'll get an additional $101 from renting a room

Can't Use Other's Exemption

Where husband and wife both have income, one can not use the other's exemption in deciding whether filing an estimate is necessary.

Example: The husband's salary will be $5,100, his wife's will be $75. Since she has income, the husband can't claim an exemption for her. So he must file an estimate on his income which is over $5,000.

(His wife doesn't have to file an estimate because her income will be under $500.)

If husband and wife both have incomes large enough to require an estimate, both must make it, separately or jointly.

At the end of 1947 they can decide whether they want to make their final return jointly or separately.

Three Other Dates

If you don't have to file an estimate now—but later in the year find that you do because of income changes or other reasons—you can file an estimate by the next payment date: June 15, Sept. 15, Jan. 15, 1948.

You don't have to correct your estimates during 1947 unless you find they're underestimated by more than 20 per cent.

Farmers don't have to make an estimate on 1947 income or make any payment until Jan. 15, 1948.

One more point:

Congress is expected to reduce taxes in 1947. That's in the future. Right now you must obey the law and file an estimate, if you should.

Later you'll be able to change your estimate, if congress reduces taxes this year.

The information in today's story won't be repeated tomorrow, so keep this if you're going to fill out an estimated tax return.

(Next: Filling out the estimated tax form).

Kenton Man Is Held On Larceny Charge

Special to The Star

KENTON, March 7 — Perry Garwood, 42, of Kenton was arraigned before Mayor LeRoy Hoppe Wednesday evening and entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of grand larceny. He was bound over to the Hardin county grand jury under $500 bond and is being held today in the county jail.

Charges were filed against Garwood by Miss Justine Reynonalds, of Centerburg, O. following the loss of her purse in a Kenton filling station Monday. Witnesses to the incident testified that Garwood picked up the purse which contained $110 in cash, a gold compact and pen and pencil set.

Local police officers stated the purse was found Tuesday morning along a country road near Kenton, the money and valuables missing.

LIQUOR INQUIRY TOLD OF BRIBE

Former Cleveland Agent Says He Was Offered $5,000 To Open Cafe.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 8—Members of the Ohio senate's liquor investigating committee—adjourned for the weekend—today study stories of two purported bribe offers to a Cleveland liquor agent.

Maynerd J. Kimball, formerly agent-in-charge of the Cleveland office, testified to the committee yesterday that James T. Mahony of Cleveland offered him $5,000 to open Gene's cafe in Cleveland padlocked for a period on testimony by the U. S. alcohol tax unit.

"Jim told me he could get $5,000 if the place was opened," Kimball declared. "I said it was ridiculous; it was impossible."

"Then he said: 'I can go back and get on the telephone and in an hour get you the $5,000.'"

Files Action for Libel

In Cleveland, it was disclosed Mahony early this week filed in Lake county common pleas court a libel action against Kimball for $100,000.

Kimball also testified before the senate committee yesterday that he received what he interpreted as an offer of $1,000 a week to permit operation of slot machines in drink spots in the Cleveland district.

This presumed offer, he said, took place "on the last Sunday in April or the first Sunday in May, 1945," in a conference with Mahony, Regis Duddy of Cleveland and a Father McKenney, whom Kimball identified as a Catholic priest.

Later testimony developed Father McKenney died "about five weeks later."

Charles Lausche Named

The name of Charles Lausche, brother of former Gov. Frank J. Lausche also figured in Kimball's testimony. The former agent-in-charge told the committee "a voice which said he was Charles Lausche" once telephoned to say he was no longer interested in the case of the Mac and Jerry bar of Cleveland—then under citation to the state liquor control board.

Richard J. Moriarty, attorney for Duddy, termed Kimball's testimony before the committee "an unmitigated lie" in a statement at Cleveland last night.

Coinciding with the testimony here, Attorney Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins returned to the picture with an announcement that 34 private club operators in the Youngstown-Warren and Steubenville areas had been cited on charges of not conducting bona fide clubs. They will be called soon before a liquor board hearing in Youngstown to show cause why their permits should not be revoked, Jenkins said.

During its nine-day stay here, the board battled almost 1,000 in revoking permits. Only one charge was dismissed and in that case investigators said a state subpoena was delivered to the wrong person.

Denies Mrs. Truman Declined Lincoln Bed

By The Associated Press

WACO, Tex., March 7—A member of President Truman's family denied an assertion, deleted from a citation conferring an honorary degree on the Chief Executive, that Mr. Truman's mother declined to sleep in the Lincoln bed at the White House

President Pat Neff of Baylor university, in presenting the President a doctor of laws degree, read the revised citation. No reason was given for the deletion but it apparently resulted from a White House request.

The original, as distributed to the press, had said 94-year-old Mrs Martha E Truman "declared a few weeks ago that when she visited the White House she would sleep on the floor before she would occupy the bed in which Abraham Lincoln slept."

At Mrs Truman's Grandview, Mo., home, Miss Mary Jane Truman the President's sister, said her mother "never refused to sleep in any bed at the White House at any time."

OHIOAN HELD IN FUR THEFTS

Clevelander Arrested in What FBI Calls Biggest Operation.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 7—A 30-year-old Clevelander was under arrest today in connection with what authorities termed one of the largest and most systematic fur thefts in history.

Anthony Alan Fusco, a Railway Express Agency employe who was taken into custody by FBI agents last night, was to be arraigned today before U S. Commissioner H. A. Horn on charges involving the theft single-handedly of raw furs valued at $104,000.

E C. Richardson, special agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office, said more than $102,000 was recovered in cash or traced to bank accounts in Fusco's name and that he admitted obtaining the money from the sale of the furs

The theft was pronounced the largest in the history of the Railway Express Agency by James Morgan, chief special agent in the agency's Great Lakes department

Richardson said Fusco readily detailed how he retagged fur shipments routed through Cleveland from the west and reconsigned them to his own home

Clearview Teachers End Dispute; School Reopens Monday

By The Associated Press

LORAIN, O., March 7—The 32 teachers at nearby Clearview schools, who resigned en masse last Monday in a dispute with pupils and parents over discipline will return to their desks Monday.

After a final meeting with school board members last night, spokesmen for the teachers said the board had given its assurance to "back up the teachers 100 per cent."

The board formally rejected the teachers' mass resignations, which had been tabled Tuesday night.

The teachers walked out last Monday when they were booed by pupils at an assembly program called to settle a strike of the pupils Some 200 students originally stayed away from classes in protest against the slapping of a pupil by high school Principal Allen Mizer. Mizer said he slapped the youth when he became insolent during questioning about a bean-shooting incident.

Members of parent - teacher groups at the schools Wednesday night voted their support of the teachers in a petition signed by 400 persons

School Board President Chandler Thompson declared "we have enough confidence in the teachers that they will be able to take care of any problems of discipline that might arise."

The teachers previously said they would return to work if the board adopted certain "policy recommendations," but these proposals were not ready in time for last night's board meeting.

Reopening of the schools, however, will not hinge upon those proposals, Thompson declared, and he expected them to be submitted to the board today.

MINERS

Lewis should never have called the strike in the first place." But others offered such comments as "Well, they sold us out again" and "Are we going to strike again?"

In the anthracite fields of eastern Pennsylvania, the feeling among miners was that the ruling might not be pleasant but that miners had no choice but to accept it.

Leonard Statkewicz, president of the Loomis Local 2444, Glen Alden Coal Co., Luzerne county, said "The decision is jolting but, as good Americans, we'll take it in our stride."

May Pay Lewis Fine

"Our local will meet today," said Statkewicz, "and if the sentiment is unchanged, we will be among the first to urge that Mr Lewis' fine and that of the UMW be taken as an obligation by the members of the union."

One Loomis mine worker grinned and said, "We'll pay."

Officers of Local 151, Marvine Colliery of the Hudson Coal Co near Scranton, Pa., said they were sure the high court ruling would ultimately be looked on as a union victory.

From the bituminous fields of southern West Virginia came talk not quite so conciliatory.

"I think the miners will walk out March 31 unless they have a new contract with the operators by then," declared Johnnie W Mask, a mine motorman and UMW local president.

"We'll Back John L"

Moses Plunty, a 67-year-old miner, said the 'Miners will stay 100 per cent behind Lewis and I think they ought to walk out again March 31 if they haven't got a new contract."

"It looks like they're trying to break up the union," grimly commented one digger

In Pittsburgh, a CIO leader—Thomas J Fitzpatrick, president of District Council 6, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers — said the decision was a bar break for labor

"Like the Dred Scott decision and the Danbury hatters case, history will have something to say about the decision in the miners' case," said Fitzpatrick. "Here labor again finds itself hurled back into the dark ages of employer rule by injunction, out of which we have climbed with so much blood and sweat in the past 50 years.

"It is my opinion that this decision, unless reversed, will cause greater industrial unrest and will lead to the shooting of workers, as rule by injunction has always done in the past.

Kiwanis Lieutenant Governor Discusses Drafting and History of Constitution.

William A. Hunt of Port Clinton, O., lieutenant governor of the fourth district of Ohio Kiwanis, spoke before Kiwanians here Thursday at their weekly luncheon meeting at Hotel Harding in his official visit to the club. He is judge of the court of common pleas of Ottawa county.

Reports were given by the church committee, Dr G. G Nuetzel, chairman, on the progress of the March to Church in March campaign which the club is sponsoring. Dr. Nuetzel reported that the committee is encouraged in the progress to the present time.

Judge Hunt chose as his subject "The U. S. Constitution, its Origin, History and Destiny." He discussed the development of the present constitution of the United States, named a number of the members of the committee that drew up the Constitution and pointed out interesting facts about them.

He explained that more than 50 delegates from the state attended the convention for drafting the constitution Some states were not represented, he said. Judge Hunt also stated that out of the total group there, 31 were lawyers. He discussed post-revolution articles of the Confederation which preceded the Constitution, and explained that the reason for the convention meeting was because the youthful government of the country was literally falling apart In his talk, Judge Hunt also said, he felt the Constitution would live forever because it was a work of art drawn up by those men who were geniuses in the matter of government

An announcement was made that at a meeting of the board of directors Tuesday, E L Cleveland, president, was elected delegate, and U A Nystrom, first vice president, was elected alternate, to the Kiwanis International convention to be held in Chicago in June It was also announced that plans are completed for the club to place gum dispensaries throughout the city in the near future with the entire proceeds to go into a fund for underprivileged children.

MARKET BACKS INTO LOSING TERRITORY

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 7—The stock market backed into losing ground today without being given much of a shove

Downward tendencies prevailed at a fairly active opening. Dealings then slowed but declines of fractions to 2 or more points ruled near the fourth hour.

Analysis provided a number of reasons for the retreat. Among these was yesterday's unconvincing rally in the wake of the supreme court John L. Lewis ruling

In the lagging division were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U S Rubber, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Kennecott, American Can, General Electric, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, Norfolk and Western, Great Northern, Southern Pacific and Southern Railway.

"Just Like War," Says Soldier Of Occupation Job in Germany

By RICHARD O'REGAN
Associated Press Writer

MANNHEIM, GERMANY, March 7—A speeding German locomotive nearly killed Tom Gorman a few days ago. Only the day before, a German dagger narrowly missed his heart.

"It's just like war," the wiry little lieutenant smiled, "only you've got to act like you like them. You can't go shooting down the Germans any more."

Two years ago, Gorman was a beer truck driver in Atlantic City, N. J. Now he's "Herr Leutnant" to 2,300 German railroad workers in Mannheim's smoky five miles of freight yards.

There are some who say that America's occupation soldiers in Germany have it plenty soft, but Lt. Tom Gorman, his boss, Capt. Marshall J. Smith and their little group of railway security police find it anything but easy. They protect the army's supplies from gangs of looters who try to raid the 3,500 freight cars a day which ship food, clothes and equipment from Mannheim to every corner of the U. S. zone.

Want To Transfer Gorman

"The colonel wants to transfer Gorman," said Smith, a combat veteran from Alliance, Ohio. "Too many Germans have threatened to get him. He's shot some of them and they don't like him interfering with their operations."

These "operations" cost the army $50,000 a month in thefts throughout the zone.

Practically every night, when the coal-laden locomotive smoke clings low to the rails and the yards and dark, thieves slip over the guarded 40 miles of surrounding fences. They work in cahoots with the engineers, with the trackmen and the signalmen.

Stalking the looters in the night, a thin beam of light strikes through the darkness, exposing Smith or Gorman in a danger-filled pool of light that follows him from track to track. Or a series of soft coded whistles race from unseen lips up and down the yards warning of the Americans' approach. Or a locomotive comes pounding down the tracks behind him.

Nearly Got Lieutenant

It was one of these mysterious, unscheduled runs that nearly closed Gorman's keen blue eyes for good. The night before Gorman had surprised a gang of 12 men after lying for three hours on the snow-covered ties beneath a carload of army food.

Some fled, but others turned on the lean, five-foot-nine officer. He killed one and wounded anther with his .45 but a knife slid too close for comfort by his side.

"You go up to the control towers," Gorman said, and you ask 'who turned that damn light on me' or 'who sent that locomotive down that track' and they just shrug their shoulders. What can you do if you don't have any proof it was deliberate. Besides—our job is to protect the freight and the Germans have sole control of the yards."

That's a problem for Smith's "D" company of the 385th Military Police Service battalion. The men can't interfere if they see a German locomotive tugging a suspicious looking freight car out of the yards. An entire freight train of 16 cars vanished recently and the cars later turned up at scattered points in Germany.

Must Guard Against Looters

Their job—and sometimes each man works 100 hours a week at it—is to guard the yards against looters and stop thefts on long-haul freight trains.

In the yards, shifts of 20 men have hundreds of miles of tracks and thousands of cars to watch. They find railroad employe working hand in glove with looting gangs, emptying American cars and transferring vital supplies to German locomotives.

"The men on the long hauls," said Smith, "have just as tough a job. Suddenly trains will stop. The guards go and ask the engineer why. He gives some excuse. Half an hour later the train moves, but in the meantime, gangs along the roadbed have looted the train.

"Sometimes," added Smith, "the engineers aren't in cahoots. The gangs stick wedges in the signals, jam them and loot one end of the train while the two American guards are at the other end."

"Maybe you can't blame the poor Germans," said Gorman. "They're hungry and they've got their families to feed and their wages don't go so far.

"But I've asked the colonel not to transfer me. I don't want these small-time operators. Everybody is an operator in Germany today. It's the big boys I'm after, and even if they threaten to get me, I'm going to stay."

BROTHERS SENTENCED AS PROBATION VIOLATORS

Cranstons Sent To Reformatory on 1 to 15 Year Terms.

Two Marion brothers each were sentenced to from one to 15 years in Ohio State reformatory at Mansfield Thursday afternoon by Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith for violation of their probations.

They are Fred B. Cranston, 28, and Paul E. Cranston, 18, both of 496 Scranton avenue. They are in the Marion county jail awaiting transportation to Mansfield.

They were indicted by the Marion county September term grand jury on charges of breaking and entering a service station last August at Milburn avenue and Silver street and were placed on five year probations by Judge Smith after pleading guilty.

They violated the terms of their probations, according to the court, by failing to pay the cost of their case and by failing to remain at home after midnight. Police also reported they were involved in a neighborhood altercation last Tuesday night.

Prop Busters Club Plans Sunday Event

The Marion Prop Busters club made plans for a model aircraft flying contest Sunday, to be held if weather conditions permit, when the group met Tuesday night at the home of William Trumpes on Franklin street. The contest will be held at the R. D. Blank farm two and a half miles south of Marion on the Barks road. Three classes will be flown, gas free flight, control line and rubber powered. Prizes will be six class "A" pocketeers, and the contest will be for all members of the club, it was announced. Plans are underway for an open contest to be held in April. In celebration of the opening of summer flying activities, Mr. Trumpes has announced he will be host chef for a spaghetti supper for all club members at his home March 18 at 7 p. m.

Ashley Heavyweight To Keep That Division from Being All-Delaware Affair.

By ART MYERS

Final arrangements for the Golden Gloves tournament to be held next Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights were made at a meeting of the Y's Men's club Wednesday night at the Y.M.C.A., as, with only a few days to go before the opening gong, last minute entries swelled the list of hopefuls to near the 100 mark.

Another community was heard from in Ashley who is sending two "promising boys with a little experience, although far from veterans." The quotes are from Fred Fogarty of Ashley, who sent the boys' entries in.

One of the lads is Russell Bartlett, 20, who weighs 192 pounds and will keep the heavyweight tussle from being an all-Delaware affair. Last year's heavy champ, Pat Patterson of Delaware, has already tossed his hat in the ring as has his stablemate and the boy he beat for the title last year, Ward Watkins.

The other Ashley boy is Robert W. Garrison, 21, 155 pounds.

Jack Draper Signs

Another boy who turned in his entry today and who has considerable experience is Jack Draper, welterweight. Draper lost out in the welter finals last year to Willard Light of Bucyrus, but showed plenty of class in surviving until the last night. He scored a TKO and a decision in earlier fights.

Another paperweight entered is Gene Eckard of 445 Jefferson street, 74 pounds, bringing the small fry total to approximately 30.

About 70 of the entries are boys in the bantamweight class to the heavyweights.

300 Tickets Sold

Don Williamson, ticket sales chairman, announced that sales of reserved seats during the first two days have totaled more than 300. There will be about 400 reserved seats available on each of the three nights of boxing. Reserved seats may be purchased at the Markert and Lewis store every day from 1 to 6 p. m.

Joseph Yannitell, general chairman, requested that all boys competing report to the armory at 6 p. m. Monday night, so they can be examined by physicians, have their hands wrapped and seconds assigned, and be matched.

Arrangements have been completed, Y's Men's club officials announced, for boys 16 or over competing in the tourney to be affiliated with the A.A.U. Winners in the tournament here will thus be eligible to compete in the state championship bouts in Columbus and, if they survive, in the national bouts at Boston.

Civic Projects Contemplated

Proceeds from the bouts will be used by the Y's Men's club in civic betterment projects. Much of the money taken in at last year's matches was used to erect three brick shelter houses at the city's parks last summer.

Club committee chairmen for the matches are Joseph Yannitell and J. J. Bray, general co-chairmen; Richard D. Myers, ushers; W. D. McGee, concessions; Arthur Myers, publicity; Forest Sharrock and Richard Langdon, paperweight trainers; L. L. Bechtel, timekeepers; and Marion E. Hinklin, announcer.

Dr. A. J. Wagner and Jimmy Williams will be referees. Russell M. Wilhelm will alternate with Hinklin as announcer.

RED SOX WALTZ TO FLAG FORESEEN

BY FRANK ECK
Associated Press Sports Writer

SARASOTA, Fla. — Joe Cronin, entering his 13th season as manager of the Boston Red Sox, sees another American League pennant for the Fenway Park fans and better baseball all around the major leagues.

Since the first day of spring training the former star shortstop has been highly optimistic over the Bosox chances of repeating and of the prospects for baseball's return to the playing clans of pre-war days.

"The war years took their toll on many stars but I believe they now are accustomed to the normal way of living," says Cronin. "It takes a full year for a player to get back to normal after being out of the game. The rookies lost a lot and so did baseball and I'm sure the competition will be much more spirited this season. The race will be closer.

"I think we'll make it again but not by 12 games. Detroit, the Yankees and the Cleveland Indians will be tough. I know Hank Greenberg hit 16 homers for the Tigers last September but I still think the Tigers found themselves in that late spurt.

"The Yanks are bound to improve. I look for Joe DiMaggio and Phil Rizzuto to return to their winning style. And the Indians are going to be real tough if Joe Gordon can come back at second base. He's a much better player than he showed last year."

Two Problems

Cronin has two minor headaches to solve—third base and right field. But he was weak at the two spots this time last year and did much manipulating to come up with the right combination.

"I refuse to believe we have any problem there," says the pilot who saw the St. Louis Cardinals steal the 1946 World Series with daring baserunning. "We have enough players and it's just a question as to who beats who around third base and in right field.

The Red Sox are stronger in playing personnel than they ever were. Cronin has improved his pitching staff to such an extent that a few throwers who could be carried along with a weak team might be farmed out for a season with Louisville.

This may apply to Tommy Fine and Mel Parnell. Fine, a product of Baylor University in Texas, won 23 and lost only three for Scranton, Pa., in the Eastern League last season. At one time Fine had won 17 straight. He's 32, old for a rookie, but he won three of the eight playoff victories that carried Scranton to the EL pennant.

Parnell missed six weeks with Scranton last season due to a shoulder injury yet finished with a record of 13 wins and four defeats. He began his organized baseball career with Centerville, Md., at the age of 17. He's 24 but lost more than three years in the Army.

BOSTON RED SOX

Hitting—Great.
Infield—Good.
Outfield—Good.
Catching—Tops.
Pitching—Best.
Finish—First.

Pair of Hopefuls

Both are brilliant prospects. Cronin, however, thinks he can top this pair with two Louisville pitchers—Harry Dorish and Al Widmar.

"They have more experience and remember they were with Louisville," says Cronin.

Louisville won the American Association flag and lost the Little World Series to Montreal. While the records of Dorish and Widmar are not as impressive as those of Fine and Parnall, any manager will favor a Triple A player over a Class A one. The Eastern League is a bigger jump from the majors than Louisville, and Cronin isn't going to forget it.

Dorish won 11 and lost four at Louisville while Widmar tossed 12 victories as against nine setbacks for the Colonels.

If just two of these four pitchers make the grade the Red Sox may make a shambles of the American League. They have the best "big four" in the majors in Dave Ferris, Tex Hughson, Mickey Harris and Joe Dobson. This quartet accounted for 75 victories last season. About 20 to 25 more would mean another pennant, and Cronin has ample insurance in such relief stars as Bill Zuber, Earl Johnson and Bob Klinger.

If it's possible to improve on a staff of that caliber look for the Bosox to accomplish just that for they have added Frankie Hayes to the catching corps which last year proved adequate with Hal Wagner handling 117 assignments and Roy Partee and Ed McGah assisting. McGah likely will wind up in Louisville.

Strong Infield

The infield will have Rudy York and his big bat back on first base, Bobby Doerr on second and Johnny Pesky at short. York and Doerr both hit below .280 last year but they accounted for 35 home runs with Doerr smashing 18. Pesky was the best hitting short fielder in the majors in 1946, batting .335, third best figure in the league and only seven points behind Ted Williams.

Third base promises to be a battle between Frank Shofner and Glen Russell, Shofner is termed a "good prospect" by Cronin. The 26-year-old Crawford, Tex., rookie hit .305 in 138 games for Louisville. Russell is 30 and while he batted only .208 in 80 games last year he came up with many timely blows. Cronin still remembers that Russell batted twice as a pinch hitter against the Red Birds last fall and each time he lashed out singles in run-producing innings.

Two-thirds of the Red Sox outfield consists of colorful Ted Williams and Dom DiMaggio. The right field spot is open to a pair of brilliant rookies—Sam Mele who hit .342 for Scranton and Bill Goodman, a recent acquisition from Atlanta where he maced the horsehide at a .389 clip. If neither fills the bill, there are such veterans as George Metkovich, Leon Culberson and Wally Moses.

Irish - Rosary Fray Shapes As Cage "Game of Year"

District Title, Trip to Regionals on Line Tomorrow at Westerville.

By GEORGE ROEST

Shaping up as truly the game of the year St. Mary's Fighting Irish play Columbus Rosary tomorrow night at Westerville for the lower bracket class B district championship. Starting time is 8 p. m.

One of the chief reasons that the tilt is expected to be a brisk battle is that each team downed the other once during the regular season.

The conditions leading up to this match have been a little different in the case of each team. They were bracketed in the tournament so that the only way they would see each other again was in the finals.

Each Had To Win 3

Each had to win three games, which they did. Rosary breezed through while the Irish, aside from the first tilt, have had to fight their hearts out to stay in the money.

Now they will be meeting in Rosary their third straight tough opponent and Rosary is meeting in them undoubtedly the toughest test the Westerville matches will produce for them.

The brand of ball played by the locals has been of an unbeatable nature so far and they will have to again play at their best to cop the title and the trip to the regionals at Springfield.

If they do it will be the first time that a St. Mary team has taken the district crown since 1942.

Staging Light Workouts

In preparation for this tilt the Irish are running through light workouts at the Y to keep the edge on their playing.

The Marion crowd that witnesses this game is expected to be the largest group of local spectators to see them in action all year. The local crowd will have to be near 1,000, though, if it is to surpass the turnout of Rosary fans. For their last tourney game, practically every student at Rosary attended. Five Greyhound buses were chartered to help transport them.

About the only direct comment that could be drawn from St. Mary Coach Gene Fetter on this coming engagement is "They're tough. Plenty tough."

When asked if the locals would turn in a victory he said, "I hope so." He added that the club would be in there fighting, a fact accepted by all who have seen the Irish in this tournament.

Junior C. of C. Plans Air Show

An air show, the biggest of its kind ever staged in Marion, is being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. It will be staged at the Baker Aviation Corporation field and the tentative date is June 18. The flying field will be dedicated the day of the show.

Charles McColley is the aviation committee chairman for the Junior Chamber and the committee will work with Mr. Baker of the flying field.

Announced plans are that 300 privately owned planes will come to Marion and an effort is being made to get military aircraft to participate.

The private planes will be owned chiefly by members of the Dawn Patrol, one of Ohio's foremost aviation clubs.

The event will be for the public and there will be no admission charge to any part of it.

Lemon May Start In Tribe-Giant Exhibition

By The Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz., March 7 — Bob Lemon, a converted outfielder, and rookies Gene Bearden and Les Willis probably will share the pitching assignment when the Cleveland Indians open their exhibition series with the New York Giants tomorrow.

The Tribe plays another intra-squad game today in preparation for the exhibition with the Giants.

Roger Wolff, veteran knuckleball hurler obtained from Washington in a swap for outfielder George Case, signed his contract.

BIG 9 SWIM MEET TO SMASH RECORDS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 7 — Records of all types were considered certain to tumble today at the Western conference swimming meet at Ohio State university.

Not only was the almost invincible Buckeye championship tank brigade expected to run away from its rivals in a repeat bid for the grand slam laurels it copped last year, but now marks for the total number of individual entries 149, total number of points scored, attendance, and total number of multiple individual titles seemed to be in the offing.

The Buckeyes, who last year won the Big Nine, the National Collegiate Athletic association and the indoor A.A.U. meets, have shown themselves every bit as powerful this year.

The NCAA meet follows in two weeks at Seattle and the AAU event will be staged here during the first week of April.

Competition got under way at 9:30 a. m. today with the 1,500 meter free style trials.

Bucyrus High School Announces Grid Card

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 7 — F. E. Stewart, Bucyrus High school faculty manager, today announced the nine-game football schedule grid season. One change is noted for the Redmen for the 1947 fall in the schedule in which Mansfield Madison replaces Delaware Willis in the last game on the slate.

Bucyrus will open the season, Sept. 12 against a non-league team, Tiffin Columbian, at Tiffin, and close Nov. 7 at Mansfield.

Other games on the schedule are as follows: Sept. 19, Norwalk; Sept. 26 at Willard; Oct. 3 at Shelby; Oct. 10 Galion; Oct. 17 at Crestline; Oct. 24 Upper Sandusky; Oct. 30 Bellevue; Nov. 7 at Mansfield Madison.

Big 9 Track Meet Opens Up Tonight

By The Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 7 — Eying the 1948 Olympic games, a powerful 240-athlete field tonight opens the 37th annual Western conference indoor track and field meet at the Illinois armory with the University of Illinois heavily favored to retain its title.

At least a dozen conference performers may emerge from the two-night competition in the cavernous armory as stand-out prospects for the American Olympic trials next year.

Tonight's program calls for trials in the broad jump, 60 yard dash, 440 yard run, 880 yard run and 70 yard low and high hurdles. The 12-event championships are booked tomorrow night.

Ohio State with a 31-man entry ranks as the leading challenger to the Illini, who have 30 entered. Michigan and Wisconsin, tied at 37 with the largest squads, are expected to battle it out for third.

Other entries: Iowa, 27; Indiana, 28; Northwestern, 22; Minnesota 19; Purdue, 11.

2 LEADERS STICK, ONE FALLS IN TOURNEYS

By The Associated Press

Upper Arlington won its 21st consecutive game, Cadmus lost its first in 21 starts and Middletown, defending state A champions, continued to win the hard way in high school basketball tournament play Thursday, as 30 teams dropped from the running.

Upper Arlington's victory was a 53 to 24 decision over Grandview in a game which found the rangy Arlington team shooting a .421 average from the floor, connecting on 24 goals in 57 shots. In the first three periods, before the subs entered the game, Arlington hit 17 of 35 from the field.

Cadmus, pride of Gallia county, went down to defeat before Crooksville 47 to 34. That boosted Crooksville's record to 24-8 and when the semi-finals are played at Logan Friday there'll be three Perry county teams still in the running. Corning (24-8) and Glenford (25-3) being the others.

Middletown, which had to go two overtimes Monday against Northridge, edged Hamilton Catholic (18-3) in the last 19 seconds Thursday when Joe Whisman dropped in a free throw to provide a 30 to 29 victory.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA—Bee Bee Wright, 145½, Harrisburg, Pa., knocked out Jerome Frazier, 151, New York, 1.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — Sunny Hampton, 140, Buffalo, outpointed Andy Klinger, 144, Wilkes-Barre, 8.

Middleweight "Go" on WMRN Tonight

Herbie Kronowitz, promising young middleweight, makes his most important start when he tangles with Artie Levine (above) in the ten-round centerpiece at New York's Madison Square Garden tonight.

Boxing men think Herbie is a coming title contender. A victory over Levine would go far toward proving they're right. Kronowitz is a good boxer with real punching power. He's strong, never lets down and rallies quickly when hurt.

In Artie Levine, however, he meets a stand-up boxer who can hold his own with the best. Artie has a powerful left hook and a short, straight right hand that is mighty effective. Also he has a way of rendering foes groggy with a rapid series of short, twisting head punches! Then—wham!

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WMRN (1490 on your dial) at 10 p. m.

RED CROSS DRIVE

UPPER SANDUSKY — With the annual Red Cross drive for funds one week old today the canvass in the several towns and township was approximately half completed. County chairman R. E. Culver said the partial reports received from district captains indicate the quota will be passed by substantial margin. Miss Catherine Parsell and Howard Kemmerly, chairmen in Jackson and Richland townships, already have their quotas passed with canvassing still to be completed. Mrs. Mary Mick, of Sycamore township, reports the drive has collected $471, over three times the quota set at $155.

Programs on the Air

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 7—Margaret Truman's appearance on the networks Sunday night is more than a radio debut. A precedent is being established.

It will be the first time on record that a daughter of a president has ever stepped before a microphone to establish herself as a singer from the standpoint of her own ability. The fact that the program in which she is to appear is the Sunday Evening Hour by the Detroit Symphony orchestra should heighten the occasion.

This is the concert presented weekly under the sponsorship of Henry H. Reichold, Detroit manufacturer and music enthusiast, on behalf of his magazine, "Musical Digest." When the present series was introduced early in January, it was stressed that music predominate and that commercial announcements be held to the merest minimum.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

AGAIN, with great effort, I kept my eyes from meeting Olga's. I knew that she shared my anxiety about Mary's queer behavior to the utmost. But we must not let our tempestuous darling guess our feeling.

"If you still want one of us to go with you after you've had a little nap and talked things over," I parried, "you shall have your wish. Just get to dozing now."

"I'll count every sheep in the corral, or is it the fold?" she quipped as her eyes closed, and Olga and I moved over to my big desk at which I had been working.

"Would you like to look at this dialogue for the second act which I have been trying to iron out?" I asked her, knowing that I could get a message to her by writing on a separate sheet, and passing it to her with the manuscript.

Had Not Considered

But I had not taken Mary into consideration. She sat bolt upright.

"Auntie Madge!" she ejaculated. "Why can't I see that dialogue, too? You know I'm crazy to get my teeth into it."

"Because," I told her firmly, "it isn't finished, and I don't want you to study any lines that aren't already jelled. It would only confuse you."

She was silent for a fraction of a second, and I wondered if I had offended her. Then I heard a sigh that apparently came from the soles of her shoes.

"Confuse me is right," she said. "And how! Okay, I'll go back to counting my little sheeplets."

She settled back under the afghan, and Olga in ordinary tones, answered the question I had put.

"I should love to look at the dialogue, dear Madge," she said, holding out her hand for the paper. "Not that my judgment would be worth anything. But I'd much rather read it than a book, a magazine, or a newspaper."

"You are very flattering," I told her. "But, if you don't mind waiting a minute, there's a line on this page I'd like to clear up. And, incidentally, I would rather have your opinion than those of any three professional critics."

"According to Philip," she said, "that isn't much of a compliment."

"I know," I said. "He's rabid on the subject of critics. But I meant the remark as a distinct tribute to your discrimination."

"Thank you so much," she said, and I set to work on my manuscript. But, instead of working on the lines I had written, I slipped two fresh pages into the pile, and wrote a message on one of them.

"I hope she'll think this is part of the manuscript," I wrote. "When you're finished reading it, slip it among the other pages. I'm smuggling you a small pencil with these pages. When I'm sure that Mary's eyes are closed, I'll clench my fingers into a fist, and you can write an answer, preferably 'yes' or 'no', on the paper. If she opens her eyes, I'll swing my hair toward you.

"First, do you agree with me that under no circumstances must one of us be in Mary's apartment when Noel comes home? I will take her down, of course, and see that she is comfortable, but I want to get away before Noel gets there. Please answer the question 'yes' or 'no.'

"Second: Do you think it is wise for Noel to get into communication with his father tonight? Answer 'yes' or 'no.' Elaborate, if you get a chance.

"Third: Will you let me know as soon as possible what is Phil's attitude?

"Fourth: Will you tell him that I am seriously concerned about Mary?

A Desperate Secret

"Fifth: Tell him that I am sure there is some secret, desperate real or fancied reason for Mary's astounding action.

"Sixth: If you think it wise, tell Philip how remorseful Mary is for having come home so abruptly. She feels so deeply that she has let him down."

I took the page from the typewriter, put it with a blank page on top of the sheets of manuscript, and held them out to Olga.

"There! I've got that particular darn in the tablecloth patched," I said.
